The P. E. Board of Missions.

The Brooklyn Scandal Again Looming Up.

NEW YORK, October 27, 1875.

The Commercial Crash.

Hugh Young has made an assignment, placing his liabilities at $171,816, and assets at $62,391, a large part of the latter being patent rights.

The music publishing house of Lee & Walker, of Philadelphia, has suspended. The liabilities are said to be $175,000. The assets of the firm, including the stock, are estimated to be over $250,000, and if the creditors are liberal it is possible that a full return will be made to them.

The suspension of Ira Beard, 457 Broadway, dealer in millinery goods, is announced.

P. E. Board of Missions.

The Board of Missions of the Protestant Episcopal Church resumed its session in St. Ann's Church to-day, Bishop Talbot, of Indiana, presiding. The proceedings, as usual, were opened with devotional exercises, which were conducted by Bishop Talbot, assisted by Rev. C. Seymour, of Connecticut.

After an animated discussion a series of resolutions were adoped, to the effect that it is a bounden duty of every one baptised systematically to give a due portion of his substance for the spread of the gospel and salvation of men.

The report of the committee to whom was referred the report of the Commission for Home Mission to Colored People was read. The report stated that the committee were gratified to announce that the administration of the commission had been found praiseworthy in every respect. The pecuniary responsibilities of the board had been strictly kept within its resources. The report suggested that the workings of the commission hereafter be confirmed as far as possible within the Southern States, and that hereafter the operation of the commission in an educational direction be, as a general rule, to aid only the church normal schools for teachers or church normal training schools for clergymen.

The Brooklyn Scandal.

The Brooklyn Eagle says it is the opinion of lawyers generally that the motion to quash the indictment in the Loader case will be denied, or rather the demurrer will be overruled. In that case Loader will be tried. It is believed that the principal witness for the prosecution will be Mrs. Elizabeth R. Tilton, and that many of the most distinguished witnesses in the great scandal trial will figure in the collateral issue. This morning Messrs. Beach and Fullerton, counsel for the plaintiff in the scandal suit, were closeted for some time with the District Attorney. There was much speculating as to what this portended. Some thought that it foreshadowed an attempt on Moulton's part to secure the indictment of Mr. Beecher, and others were of the opinion that the two great counsellors had been retained to defend Loader.

Railroad Conductors' Life Insurance Convention.

The eighth annual convention of the Railroad Conductors' Life Insurance Association of the United States and Canadas opened its session this morning in the Grand Central Hotel. President J. W. Seymour, of the Illinois Central Railroad, called the body to order, and prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. Miller, of Brooklyn. About one hundred and twenty-five delegates were present, and many ladies occupied seats in the Convention.

Recovering from the Tweed Ring.

Surrogate Hutchins to-day ordered the United States Trust Company to pay over to the State officers $590,435, in satisfaction of a judgment of the Supreme Court against the estate on one of the Tweed ring suits. The remainder of the funds in the hands of the Trust Company, after the payment of counsel and trustee fees, is ordered to be paid to Watson's widow, as administratrix, for the benefit of the creditors of the estate.

The Ocean National Bank.

The case of S. P. Archer against the Ocean National Bank, was resumed to-day. C. S. Stevenson, cashier of the bank when it was robbed, and subsequently its President, testified that he had no idea that the bank was to be robbed, and, all assertions to the contrary notwithstanding, he had neither planned the robbery nor had anything to do with its accomplishment.

Murderer Sentenced.

John Dolan, indicted for the murder of James H. Noe, was this evening convicted in the Oyer and Terminer Court and sentenced to be hanged on December 10.

Fatal Family Quarrel.

John and Thomas Dowdell, father and son, of No. 44 Henry street, quarreled early this morning, while drunk, and the father shot the son. The wound is fatal.

THE VIRGINIA CITY FIRE.

Hundreds of Families Homeless and Hungry.

Utter Demoralization in the City.

The Loss Between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000.

SAN FRANCISCO, October 27.—Additional news from Virginia City says at present it is impossible to state the loss of life. Two men were killed on C street by a falling wall. There are numberless rumors of other casualties. Hundreds of families are homeless and hungry. The school houses are the only public buildings left. They are open to them, but if immediate relief is not extended great suffering will ensue. Utter demoralization reigns in the city. Men, women and children wander about the streets, seeking shelter. The surrounding hills are dotted with camp fires. A few saloons remain, but supplies of liquor have not been lacking, and the streets are alive with a drunken mob. The military are patroling the city for the protection of property.

The Feeling in San Francisco.

The feeling on the street this morning was better than yesterday, and a less disposition to magnify the disaster. Contradictory reports are still floating about concerning the fire in the Ophir shaft, some professing to believe that the damage is known by insiders to be much greater than is admitted. The most authentic information, however, is that the shaft has suffered no material injury. It is reported on apparently good authority that the new hoisting works of Lady Washington mine, which are similar in power and pattern to that of the Consolidated Virginia, will be set up on the latter mine without delay. The works are now on the Lady Washington grounds, but are not yet in position, and can be made available on the Consolidated Virginia in a very short time. Well-informed parties state confidentially that the Consolidated Virginia will pay five dollars dividend for two or three months until it is under full headway again.

No definite advices are received as yet as to the extent of the damage to the several mining properties involved. The total loss by the fire is now placed at from $3,000,000 to $4,000,000.

In the streets this morning stocks were about as follows: Best & Belcher, 40; Caledonia, 54⅜; Consolidated Virginia, 250; Gould & Curry, 20; Hale & Norcross, 34; Ophir, 43; Savage, 85.

Later From the Fire.

Dispatches received to-day give further details of the Virginia City conflagration. They confirm previous reports as to the extent of the calamity. The scene during the progress of the fire is beyond description. The wind blew a gale, driving cinders and flames far in advance of the burning buildings, rendering all attempts to check the progress of the fire futile. Giant powder was freely used to blow up buildings, and frequent heavy explosions shook the earth. The roof of the Catholic Church was blown 100 feet into the air, leaving the bare walls standing. By 8 o'clock A. M. the excitement was at its height. The streets were filled with people and teamsters, the struggling throng fire-fighting at presentable points, women shrieking their cries of despair, the curses of enraged men, the roar of the flames, the dull reports of explosions as building after building took fire, the heavy thud and crash of falling walls, the snap of bursting iron bars and doors, the howl of the gale—all went to make up a scene of indescribable horror.

By 10 A. M. the Consolidated Virginia hoisting works, building and mill were wrapped in flames, and soon fell. The new California stamp mill fell a prey to the fire, which swept to within a few rods of the C. & C. hoisting works, when the veering of the wind turned the flames and carried them to the Ophir works, which soon fell in. The shaft timbers caught fire, but were extinguished without doing much damage. By 11 A. M. the flames had spent their fury. The wind died away, leaving a bed of smouldering ruins three-quarters of a mile long and half a mile wide.

A special to the Call this morning says ... loss at ... the best business men estimate the ... $7,500,000.

SECOND EDITION

THE CAMPAIGN.

Gov. Hartranft at New Castle.

A Visit to the Teachers' Institute and Manufactories.

Enthusiastic Reception at the Opera House.

A Very Effective Speech by the Governor.

Democratic Slanders Successfully Refuted.

Special to the Pittsburgh Gazette.

NEW CASTLE, PA., October 27, 1875.

After his ovation in Beaver county, yesterday, Governor Hartranft, accompanied by Hon. W. W. Ketchum, of Wilkesbarre, and Hon. Lorenzo Danford, of Ohio, entered Lawrence county this morning, and stopped at this place, the county seat. A very large crowd greeted the party at the station and escorted them to the Leslie House, Lawrence county. The Teachers' Institute being in session, a committee of members waited on the Governor and invited him to visit that body. He accepted, and was introduced by Superintendent Aiken, and made a short address in his happiest vein. In the best of taste he reiterated his interest in the common school system of the State, and promised aid and encouragement, whether as executive or as a private citizen. He disavowed all political object in calling on them, and closed by wishing the teachers professional success and individual happiness. During a recess of fifteen minutes he was introduced personally to all.

The Governor and party were then driven to the extensive iron works, planing mills and other manufactories here abounding. Unostentatiously passing among the men of toil, the soldier Governor greeted many old comrades, and made more friends by his cordiality and manly bearing.

At 1:30 the large Opera House was crowded in every part with an enthusiastic audience, composed of the best people of this part of the country. The reception of Hartranft was most hearty, and significant of the determination to send him out of the home of his prohibition rival with a majority which shall rebuke the attempt made to punish him by fanatical friends—R. Audley Brown.

The Governor's Speech

was straightforward, disingenuous and very effective. He explained and successfully defended the signing of the repeal of the Local Option bill. A Legislature fresh from the people passed the repeal. There were no constitutional objections to it, and he had nothing to do but submit to the change of sentiment in the State, and sign the bill. He had no forgiveness to ask, having conscientiously done his duty.

He next referred to the slander circulated by Democrats and Prohibitionists that he had issued cartridges to troops in this and adjacent counties. He explained that the ammunition was issued to every division for target practice. If the Quartermaster of this division had drawn cartridges for any other purpose it was fraudulently obtained. It was certain troops could not be called out except by the Governor's command, and he would never order them out save when the civil authorities were unable to preserve the peace. He never had any complaint from this section, and, therefore, the question never had been discussed or thought of by him.

He then discussed the finances of the State at length, and assured the people that not a dollar of the Sinking Fund had been lost or unlawfully applied.

Hon. Lorenzo Danford's Speech.

Mr. Danford followed in a masterly address on the finances. Fresh from the Ohio campaign, he is armed against all attacks on a sound financial policy, and always demolishes the harmful fallacies of inflation Democrats. He spoke for two hours, and carried the audience with him to the close.

Mr. Ketchum's Speech.

The time for taking the train for Sharon being near, Mr. Ketchum made but a short speech, but succeeded in influencing the audience with his own enthusiasm for Hartranft's election.

Republican Rally at Connellsville.

Addresses by Gen. Koontz and Mr. Ed. Scull.

Special to the Pittsburgh Gazette.

CONNELLSVILLE, October 27, 1875.

The Republicans of this place and vicinity turned out en masse this evening to listen to the addresses of Gen. W. S. Koontz and Ed. Scull. The crowd was simply immense, and the greatest enthusiasm was manifested by those present. A number of Democrats were scattered through the assemblage, but they appeared still to remember the lesson they received in the Ohio election, recently, and consequently kept very quiet.

Gen. Koontz's Address.

Gen. Koontz reviewed the acts of the Republican administration, from the inauguration of President Lincoln down to the present time, and compared the result with the Government of James Buchanan and others of that stripe, placing the Democracy in a bad light. In speaking of the Ohio election, he showed that the people were heartily tired of Democratic rule.

When the speaker mentioned Governor Hartranft's name there were thunders of applause, clearly showing what a hold the soldier Governor has on the affections of the people. He completely refuted the slanders of the Democrats and Prohibitionists that the Governor signed the Local Option Repeal bill in order to gain the vote of the liquor men. He said a Democratic Legislature had passed the bill, and in justice to the people whom the legislators represented he signed the bill, as the representatives are supposed to represent the feelings and sentiments of their constituents.

He next spoke of the finance question, and showed conclusively that a Republican Congress had given us the best and safest circulating medium that we have ever had. Before the war, when a man had State bank bills, he did not know the worth of them, as a single day very often materially changed their value. But with greenbacks and National bank notes it is altogether different. We know that they will be par tomorrow as well as to-day.

The speaker retired amidst great applause.

Mr. Ed. Scull followed in an address of considerable length, eliciting hearty applause whenever he mentioned the name of the Republican candidate for Governor.

The Democrats this evening feel very sore over the outlook, feeling that their candidates stand but a poor chance in this locality. S.

Another Meeting.

In the evening ex-Senator John Scott and C. J. Arms, of Pittsburgh, addressed a meeting even larger than that of the afternoon. Mr. Scott's argument was exhaustive on financial matters, tracing the causes of the present business distress, and defending the Republican party from the accusation of being responsible for the panic and hard times. He arraigned the Democrats as haters of greenbacks when they were necessary to the life of the nation, and lovers of them only when the honor of the Government demands that they should be redeemed.

The public interest in the meetings of the day and night continued and increased to the close. They have unquestionably stemmed the tide of Brownism hereabouts, and will bring Republicans and Democrats to the sound and honest platform of Lancaster. The Republican majority in Lawrence will not fall below fifteen hundred.

MASS MEETING AT SHARON.

Addresses by Gov. Hartranft, Hon. W. W. Ketchum and Hon. Lorenzo Danford.

Special to the Pittsburgh Gazette:

SHARON, PA., October 27, 1875.

There was a Republican mass meeting here this evening. There were four hundred torches in line, seventy horsemen, and a crowd estimated at from six to eight thousand. Governor Hartranft, Hon. W. W. Ketchum and Hon. L. Danford, of Ohio, delivered speeches amidst the greatest enthusiasm. The Governor was received by our citizens en masse. A salute of twenty guns was fired by the employes of the Westerman Iron Works. This was the largest meeting ever held in the town.

Killed by a Policeman.

CINCINNATI, October 27.—A man named H. C. Johnson was shot and instantly killed at an early hour this morning while being conveyed to the station house. It is not clear where the shot came from, though it is supposed to have been from Officer Dowling's revolver, as he was endeavoring to intimidate the prisoner at the time, the latter offering considerable resistance. Johnson was employed in a leather store.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Thanksgiving Day Appointed.

The Case of the Union Pacific R. R. Before the Supreme Court.

WASINGTON, October 27, 1875.

Thanksgiving Proclamation.

The President to-day issued his proclamation designating the twenty-fifth day of November as a day of thanksgiving and prayer throughout the United States.

The Union Pacific Railroad Case.

In the Supreme Court to-day the Government's appeal from the decision of the Court of Claims in the Union Pacific Railroad case came up for argument. The substantial question presented by this case is whether, by the true construction of the act of 1862, incorporating the Union Pacific Railroad Company, as amended by the act of 1864, the United States, whenever it pays interest on bonds issued to aid in the construction of the road, is entitled to enforce immediate payment thereof from the company by suit or otherwise, or whether such reimbursement can be obtained only by the application of one-half of the compensation due the company for services rendered to the Government and five per cent. of the net earnings of the road after its completion. The company insist that the latter construction is obvious and just, and consequently that it is entitled to recover the amount herein claimed, being one-half the sum due for compensation, as stated. The Government does not pretend, as is asserted by the company, that it may withhold this half by force of any authority to that effect expressed in the statutes, but solely upon the ground that upon the payment of interest on bonds, it thereupon becomes to that extent the creditor of the company, and is entitled to immediate reimbursement of the sum paid, recoverable by suit or offset. The company contend that the frame work of the charter, the declared national purposes it sets forth, the Government control assumed, the Government aid proffered, the public uses to which the work when completed was to be subjected, and finally, the increased public aid promised by the act of 1864, when it was found that the requisite capital could not be obtained under the act of 1862—all, it is urged, concur to establish that the work was deemed by the Government of such paramount national importance that only by a narrow, illiberal and strained construction can it now be contended that any of the Government aid offered, whether of bonds or land, should be regarded as donations to the company. Plainly it is said they were not such, but are to be viewed as reasonable national contributions to aid in the construction of a great national highway along our public domain, connecting the East with the far West by telegraph and railway. It is then contended that by the provisions of the charter, which are examined at length, the company was not bound, either expressly or by implication, immediately to reimburse the Government for interest it should pay upon bonds, nor until their maturity.

The Attorney General submits that the plain meaning and intent of Congress, apparent from all the statutes when construed together, is that the United States are entitled under the charter accepted by the company to retain the whole value of the services rendered to the United States toward the payment of the interest advanced by the Government upon bonds loaned to the company. The Attorney General says that if the judgment below in favor of the company is sustained, two hundred million dollars will be transferred to the stockholders of these roads. If, says the Attorney General, this judgment be sustained before a single generation shall have passed the Government will have paid for the different Pacific Companies $318,035,714 in interest alone, less only one half the charges for services, the other half being paid by the Government.

The Crops.

Agricultural returns for October show that the wheat crop for the present year is a short one, and there is a marked deterioration in the quality. The average thus far reported is about eighty per cent. of last year's production. It this indicates the total depreciation it amounts to nearly 62,000,0000 bushels, and gives a crop of 246,000,000 bushels. In quality the crop averages fourteen per cent. below a sound condition. The condition of the corn crop is exceptionally high. The product reported this year falls short of 1874 about four per cent. The oats product is five per cent. greater than last year. The potato crop promises to be extraordinary, both in yield and quality. Tobacco is two per cent. above the average. Barley is eighty-seven per cent. of last year's crop, and buckwheat not far from an average.

A Blow to Specie Resumption

Dr. Linderman, Director of the Mint, estimates that by the Virginia City fire the supply of gold bullion will be cut off to the extent of one million per month for four months, and the supply of silver bullion one and a half million per month for the same length of time.

STORM ON THE LAKES.

Great Destruction Among the Shipping.

DETROIT, MICH., October 27.—The gale from the west continued with unabated force until noon, since which it has considerably abated. The barge E. T. Judd, with a cargo of wheat from Buffalo, is ashore at Port Auston reef. The schooner Sylvester Neelon, with a cargo of barley, is ashore at Point Au Pelee. The schooner Emen is ashore and full of water on Starve island, Lake Erie. The schooner C. A. King, with a cargo of wheat, went ashore in the Straits of Mackinaw on Monday night. She has since been released, and is being towed to Detroit, leaking. The schooner P. J. Cleveland is lying in the Straits of Mackinaw, leaking. The canvass is all gone.

PORT COLBORN, October 27. — The schooner Erie Belle, wheat laden, went ashore this morning off this harbor. It is blowing a gale from the west.

THE DENVER MURDER.

An Italian Confesses to Having Played His Harp While the Throats of the Victims Were Being Cut.

DENVER, COL., October 27.—Three of the participants in the murder of four Italians in this city recently have been arrested. One of them, an Italian, confessed to having played his harp whilst five others cut the throats of their victims. Three of the murderers, Gallati and Frank Rolide, Italians, and a Mexican are still at large, and it is thought they will be overtaken in a few hours. The indignation is intense, but it is believed that the culprits will be dealt with according to law.

AMUSEMENTS.

Pittsburgh Opera House.

Another full house greeted the "Two Orphans" last evening, and the same bill will be repeated to-night.

Library Hall—Thomas' Concert.

The first of Theodore Thomas' Grand Concerts was given last evening at Library Hall. The attendance was very fine and the musical features were a decided success. The programme was a most interesting one and was delightfully rendered throughout. The "Raff Concerto" introduced M'me. Madeline Schiller, the new candidate for musical honors, and she fully sustained the high reputation which preceded her coming. She has all the requisites for a great piano player, as her success in the "Raff Concerto," and also with Chopin's great "Polonoise," most strikingly illustrated. There was a perfection in her execution of the two pieces, and a delicacy and beauty in the shading, as has seldom been equaled in this city. Mr. Thomas may be congratulated on the success of his first concert. It was largely attended by an audience brilliant and appreciative.

The second and last concert will be given this evening, with the selections from Beethoven, Mozart, Mendelssohn, Chopin, Brahms and Wagner,—and Mme. Schiller plays the difficult concerto in E. Minor, by Chopin.

—The West bound train on the Lake Shore road, on Wednesday afternoon, when near Quincy, Mich., ran into a wagon containing a man named Norton, aged twenty-one, and his mother, aged sixty-five, killing both almost instantly. The horses stopped on the track in front of the approaching train, and refussd to move.

—Advices from London deny the story of love and assassination in which the King of Spain and the Duke de Sexto are represented as the principal actors. One version, speaking of the wife and daughter of a Spanish Colonel, shows its falsity from the fact that the colonel mentioned is well known in New York, where he resided a long time, and married an American lady, who has no daughter, and the gentleman, instead of being assassinated, is alive and in comfortable circumstances.

HOLDING ELECTIONS.

Some Suggestions to Officers.

To the Editors of the Pittsburgh Gazette:

Having been present several times at the opening of election returns, and noticed the numerous cases where the returns were so defective as to cause the Court to send for the officers to correct them, I have written some suggestions in regard to the opening of elections and making returns after the close, which may be of use to inexperienced officers:

Each inspector should select a competent person to act as clerk and arrange with them to be present before 7 A. M., on the day of election.

If the minority inspector fails to attend, then the person who received the second number of votes for judge of election at the preceding election is entitled to take his place.

If the majority inspector does not appear the Judge shall appoint a person to take his place.

In case the Judge does not attend, then the appointment of a judge devolves upon the majority inspector.

In case the polls remain unopened for one hour after the time appointed for opening (7 A. M.), the citizens present shall choose officers to conduct the election.

After the officers have been sworn their first duty is to empty the boxes of the tickets cast at the preceding election and burn and totally destroy them.

The judge shall designate one of the inspectors to take charge of the registry of voters. The other shall number each ballot in the order in which it shall be received.

When a person presents himself and offers his ballot, the registry inspector should examine the list for his name, and if found and the vote accepted, place a mark opposite to said name. And if the name cannot be found, require all the proof requisite without regard to the individual. If the election officers shall find that the applicant has all the qualifications of a voter, his name shall be added to the list of taxables, the word "tax" being added where the claimant claims to vote on tax, and the word "age" where he claims to vote on age; the same words are to be added by the clerks in each case respectively, on the lists of persons voting.

When a vote is accepted the window inspector shall mark each of the tickets voted with the number corresponding with that entered by the clerks opposite to the name of the person voting.

Close the polls at 7 P. M., after which the boxes are to be opened and the vote counted.

The inspectors are to take each ticket singly and read off the names, and as each name is read the clerks are to make a mark opposite to said name on their tally-sheets. Examine the tally and return sheets carefully and see if the names printed thereon agree with the names voted.

If the names printed on the tally and return sheets are different from the tickets voted, correct them. And if persons are voted for, whose names are not printed on the tally and return sheets, write their names thereon.

As soon as the vote is counted, make a brief statement showing the votes received by each candidate, which is to be signed by each of the officers; and after the vote is publicly declared to the citizens present, post said statement on the door of the election house for public information.

Take the blank headed "Return Sheet" and write after the names of each of the candidates, first in words and again in figures, the whole number of votes received by each respectively.

Make three copies on the blanks headed "Triplicate Election Returns." All of which are to be signed by the officers.

Each of the triplicate returns shall be enclosed in an envelope in presence of the officers.

Take one of the envelopes containing the triplicate returns and place it in another envelope, with one list of voters, tally paper and oaths of officers, and give them to the Judge; also the "Return Sheet," which place in a separate envelope, unsealed.

One of the sealed envelopes containing triplicate returns is to be given to the minority inspector, who is to retain possession of the same unless demanded by order of Court.

The remaining envelope is to be placed in the box with the ballots, one of the lists of voters and one of the tally sheets.

The box is then to be closed, and, after having been securely bound with tape and sealed, and the signatures of the judge and inspectors affixed thereto, is to be taken by the judge and minority inspector to the office of the nearest Alderman or Justice of the Peace, to be taken in charge by said officer until again required.

The judge shall, provided he lives within twelve miles of the court house, or within twenty-five miles, if on the line of a railroad leading to the county seat, deliver the returns entrusted to his care to the Prothonotary of the Court of Common Pleas before 2 P. M. of the day after the election. Other judges to have until 12 M. of the second day after the election. PITT.

GOLD closed in New York yesterday at 116.

WE are in receipt of the report of Dr. YOUNG, of the Bureau of Statistics on Labor in Europe and America. It is an able document, and we propose, at an early date, to analyze a number of the articles, on certain phases of the labor problem.

THE burning of Virginia City is another of those terrible events which show that with all his skill, man has not gained the victory over the fire monster. The space of about a half mile is burned over, and thousands of persons are homeless and desolate. The loss is estimated at between eight and ten millions. The people on the Pacific slope are preparing to extend aid to the unfortunate sufferers.

THE other side of the Cuban question, so far as Administration action is concerned, is the report that Collector CASEY is a large holder of Cuban bonds, and that he inspires the talk about Administration interference in Cuban affairs, as a mere speculation. However this may be, there can be no doubt that the long continuance, and exhausting character of the war tends to inspire the hope that something will be done to bring it to an end. Whatever the policy of the President may be, there can be no doubt that the time has come to put an end to the effusion of blood.

THE death of CARRUTH, the Vineland editor, being accepted for the time being as the result of the wound inflicted by LANDIS, the case is treated for the present as one of murder. Viewing it in this light, it is the opinion of the Eastern press that while LANDIS should have been more self-contained under abuse than he was, CARRUTH really deserved the fate he met. He had used his paper as an organ of personal vituperation, and met the fate such a course is very likely to bring. It is a fresh illustration of the bad result of yielding to evil passion.

THE Johnstown Tribune is authority for the statement that in some parts of the State, at least, the temperance movement is closely related to the Democracy. It declares that "ARCHY MCALLISTER, the greatest blatherskite in the State of Pennsylvania, one of the leaders of the Prohibition movement in Blair county, and a member of the State Central Committee of that organization, is a near relative of PERSHING's, and has publicly stated, recently, that he desires PERSHING's election and HARTRAFT's defeat, and that the running of BROWNE only helps the Democracy. Archy is a Democrat, and a relative of the Democratic candidate for Governor!" We have seen it stated in Father HERITAGE's Temperance Blessing, one of the truest temperance journals in the State, that Judge BLACK declared that the object of the Prohibition movement this year, is to defeat HARTRANFT. Inferentially, it is, therefore, its object to elect PERSHING, and thus place the Democracy in power. Are there any sincere temperance people desirous of working in this cause?

THE English people are likely to be more occupied in looking after the securities they hold against Turkey, for a while to come, than in caring for their bonds held against the United States. The Ottoman Empire owes $920,000,000, chiefly to English creditors. Much of it was borrowed at usurious rates of interest, sometimes as high as 18 per cent., because of the want of confidence in the Sultan's integrity. The annual interest upon this sum amounts to $67,500,000, while the whole revenue of the country is only $108,000,000. As it was useless for the Sultan to try to borrow any more money, unless at suicidal rates, he has coolly announced his intention to repudiate half the interest on the debt, thus saving to himself $33,750,000 a year. This has created a terrible excitement in England, but the feeling among disinterested parties is that the creditors do not deserve much sympathy, because they charged enough for their loans to cover this very risk. Just what effect this course will have on the future of the Ottoman Empire is another and very different matter. Should it be compelled to borrow again, it will be made to suffer; and if it shall stand dishonored, and unable to effect loans, it will be easy prey to any great power that chooses to assail.

UNDER the question, "who decide elections," an Eastern journal has been looking up figures in Massachusetts, and reaches the conclusion that those who do not vote have as much influence to this end as those who do. It says: "Theoretically, of course, all these things are controlled by the majority of the legal voters in the State; but a very slight examination of the figures is all that is necessary to show that in Massachusetts, and probably also in nearly all the other States, every question submitted to the people is in fact decided by the vote of a comparatively small number of the legal voters. According to the official synopsis of the census of the Massachusetts for 1875, there are within the State 351,066 legal voters. Making allowance for the fact that the most careful enumeration made by the process of census-taking always falls somewhat short of the actual fact, it is fair to assume that the number of legal voters set down does not greatly exceed the actual number of persons who might have voted at the elections of 1872 and 1873; and yet the total vote cast in 1872 was, for President 192,777, and for Governor 193,780; while in 1874 the total vote was only 185,900. From this it appears that 157,286 legal voters took no part in the election of 1872, and in 1874 the number of persons who did not vote was 165,077. Governor Gaston was elected by 96,377 votes, or 79,158 less than half the possible number, while the number of voters who did not vote, either for or against him, exceeded his entire constituency by 68,700." The misfortune is, that the non-voters are, generally, the best element we have; and hence a fearful power is given to those who care but little for the true welfare of the country. The great battle, in this State, has been to arouse the people and induce them to feel the importance of voting. The above facts should stimulate them to be at the polls on election day.

THE EVANGELICAL ALLIANCE.

The meeting, in this city, of the Evangelical Alliance, is an event of no ordinary importance, and, if we should not give it the editorial space its importance deserves, it will not be because of our failure to appreciate it. This organization is promotive of the idea to which we briefly referred yesterday—the development of the fundamentals of Christian faith. It is composed of eminent gentlemen of different denominations, who, rising above denominational differences, meet together to consider such matters as pertain to the Evangelical phases of Christianity. Polemical discussions are not indulged; and theological differences do not come to the surface. The papers read, discussions had, and even the deliberations of committees, all turn on some phase of practical Christian effort in behalf of the masses of the people. This Evangelical Alliance is, in a sense, an anomaly, such as only these latter days could produce. All the early Alliances, Councils and the like were for the consideration of doctrines, discipline, church polity and the like. Many of them gave birth to policies that spread sorrow and death over fair lands. The trail of the Inquisition, marked with blood, and the martyr fires, were traceable to some of the early Councils. The doctrinal Councils of later times were important, both as being a step in advance of what had been and as defining exact forms of faith. The period of doctrinal discussion was probably necessary to the more liberal and evangelical spirit of modern times. It did this service,—it settled all questions of faith sufficiently for us not to need to discuss differences farther. Where we do not agree, we agree to disagree; and having searched out the points wherein we do agree, they are found to embrace the fundamentals of Christianity.

Thus a new step, or departure, has been taken,—that of practical effort to elevate and really save the masses. This work embraces many nice questions,—in social and other forms of science, in practical observation and experience, and in actual methods. Therefore the papers read at the Alliance take large scope, and may, at first sight, seem to the casual observer to be irrelevant. Not so, however. It will richly repay those who choose to listen to the papers submitted. They have been prepared by able men, and are the fruits of their ripest thoughts. The subject of reaching, elevating, and saving the masses seems to be the third in the great trinity of efforts the world has seen. First, we had the Truth given us; then, when the Great Teacher was gone, and a few centuries had elapsed, it seemed necessary to grope through darkness, fire, and blood to sound faith again. Now the practical offering of the truth to the masses is our period; and in this the Alliance is prominent.

WATCH EVERY POINT.

As election approaches, it is usual for tricky experts to resort to many and various forms of deception, to catch the unwary. Tickets are printed in imitation of ours, but with one or more Democratic name upon it. At times the name of one or more Republican is wrongly spelled, so that it will not be counted. Other dodges have been, and will again be resorted to. We warn our friends that circumstances point to the certainty that the Democracy will resort to these devices, in every form imaginable, that they may trick away the votes of the people. The best method of preventing the success of such experiments is to consult the ticket as printed in the GAZETTE, or to receive your ticket, when about to vote, from the hands of a well-known Republican. We hope, particularly in this county, where there is so much strife over the local ticket, that every precaution will be taken to save our people from being misled. No one need be deceived who takes proper pains to inform himself.

There are attempts to draw aside votes for particular candidates for personal or complimentary reasons. We are satisfied this plan is being used in behalf of PATTERSON and ROUTH. Against these persons the Republican party presents strong and popular candidates. There is no good reason why either should receive a complimentary vote, and we hope they will not be given. The Republican party naturally has a majority in this county; hence any complimentary votes go to aid the Democrat for whom they are given, to office. It is not safe to rest on the idea that a few will not do harm. This complimentary business has been reduced to a system, and the design of it is to secure enough votes in this way to overcome an adverse majority. There is no reason why any favors of this character should be granted. PATTERSON is not in any particular superior to FIFE, while the latter has the experience gained in a subordinate position to aid him when he comes into full possession of the office. As between ROUTH and GRAY, the disparity is still more apparent. The office to be filled is one that requires acquaintance with legal principles, forms and methods. Mr. GRAY has developed excellent qualifications as judge, in a sense, where important evidence has been taken, and decisions rendered. The best friend of Mr. ROUTH will certainly not claim for him any qualifications in this direction. His unfitness, therefore, for the office to be filled, is the best reason why Mr. ROUTH should be defeated. So give neither of the Democratic gentlemen mentioned complimentary votes. If you have promised it, and desire to withdraw, yet feel bound by your promise, let us say that the manly and honorable course is to go to the person to whom you gave the promise, and openly withdraw it.

There are rumors in circulation, also, that while heavy Democratic votes will be given for HARTRANFT, it will be at the expense of RAWLE. We have sifted these rumors quite carefully, and they amount to this: The Democrats regard PERSHING as certain of defeat, and have practically abandoned him. In order to turn this predestined defeat to account, they are stirring heaven and earth to elect PIOLLET. This is what the assaults on the State Treasury mean. They are understood to be arranging to trade PERSHING votes for Republican votes for PIOLLET. In four or five counties they have organized Granger lodges and made some slight progress in this way. In all cases the arrangement has been to sacrifice PERSHING in the interest of PIOLLET. We have equally explicit information that what we lose in one direction, we will gain in another, and that both HARTRANFT and RAWLE will be elected. We mention the tactics followed to show the readiness of the Democracy to trade a candidate for whose election they have no hopes, in the interest of one they are really struggling to elect. Do not be caught in this snare. It is no concession to give us PERSHING votes,—he is certain to be defeated anyhow; and if you give a vote for PIOLLET in return, your gift will be twice as valuable as the one you receive. Stand by the State and County ticket.

We also express the hope that our friends will not indirectly aid the Democracy by casting their votes for Third party candidates. We have every proper interest in and sympathy for the cause of temperance, considered by itself. Our friends need not imagine that we assail the cause, when we object to the means made use of to promote it. It is because we think they will prove injurious rather than beneficial, that we speak. And we have no hesitancy in saying this, that the Republican party has been the only powerful friend of the temperance cause it has ever had in this Commonwealth. Yet the Prohibition movement really plays into the hands of the Democracy. We hope those who are governed by moderate and sensible views will not aid this rash work. We should avert the immediate evils, and then fight for the good we love.

POLITICAL NOTES.

THE Democrats concede Hartranft 15,000 in Philadelphia, but the Republicans claim 25,000.

HON. GALUSHA A. GROW is compelled, by the bad condition of his throat, to refrain from making many speeches.

IT is now said that General Banks will not speak at Democratic meetings. His position is one of armed neutrality in the present campaign.

JAY ODELL, who ran for Governor of Ohio on a Prohibition ticket, got only 2,553 votes. His nomination was a Democratic device of singular transparency.

COLLECTOR SLACK, of Boston, appears in the role of a prophet, and announces that General Sherman is to be the next Republican candidate for the Presidency.

WHAT makes the Democratic statesmen so shy of Pennsylvania? Governor Hendricks made one speech and started immediately home again. Governor Allen made one, and was summoned back at once to Columbus. No other prominent Democrat outside of the State has been heard in the canvass. What is the trouble? Do they think it a bad sign to aid in too many funerals?—N. Y. Tribune.

PERSONAL.

IT seems now that Singer had five wives instead of three, and no wonder that the poor man had to get up some kind of a sewing machine.

Z. M. CRANE, a wealthy manufacturer of Dalton, Berkshire county, Mass., invited his friends not to bring presents to the wedding of his daughter last week.

MRS. LINCOLN, who is now stopping in Springfield, Ill., takes occasional short walks upon the streets, and seems to be somewhat improving from her late depression of spirits.

THE wife of Secretary Robeson has recovered the camel's hair shawl which she thought she had left in a hack at Baltimore. It had been left in a railroad car and carried to Jersey City, whence it was duly returned to the owner.

"STONEWALL" JACKSON was a great military chieftain, and is famous in history, and yet how many of our readers to whom his sobriquet is so familiar, would know, if we didn't tell them, that his real name was Thomas Jonathan Jackson?

NOT only is it true that Mr. Carlyle never declined the Harvard degree of LL. D., in insulting terms, but he has actually indicated to President Eliot his intention of accepting it when he receives official notice that it has been conferred.

GEORGE METZGER, of Carlisle, Pa., now in his ninety-fifth year, is the oldest person who has ever served in the Pennsylvania Legislature. He was a member during the years 1813 and 1814. He is said to retain his powers of body and mind almost unimpaired.

ONE of the persons who are under treatment in the Good Samaritan Hospital of Cincinnati is Dr. David Creel, who was one of the jurors in the trial of Aaron Burr. His recollection of Burr is very distinct, and he describes him as one of the most fascinating men whom he ever heard speak.

EX-COL. BAKER has snug apartments in Horsemonger Lane jail. He is allowed to receive visits from his wife and friends, and books are supplied to him in large quantities. Delicacies of all sorts minister to his palate, and his apartments, but for the iron bars and deprivation of liberty, would be considered sumptuous by any bachelor in New York or London.

THE Hon. William D. Kelley, in his speech at Atlanta, Ga., said that in front of his house in Philadelphia stands a huge chestnut tree planted by George Washington, and that in his house are pictures of most of the signers of the Declaration of Independence and other heroes of the Revolution and many mementoes of that period. He added that he had offered his house to the British Legation as their headquarters while at the Centennial, and the offer had been accepted.

PERE HYACINTHE.

He Defines His Creed, and Gives the Story of His Career in Geneva.

Pere Hyacinthe has just republished his sermons at Geneva. They contain the explanation so long asked of his real creed. He takes as text of his faith four maxims: one from St. Augustine, "In things necessary, we must have unity; in things doubtful, liberty; in all things, charity;" one from Montalembert, "The Jesuits are a hateful sect, which in these times tyrannizes and makes profit out of Catholicism;" one from M. Renan, "I can say of the Catholic Church what Job said of God, 'Even though He kill me, in Him will I hope;'" and last, a passage from Pere Gratry's treatises on the latest Council, "They finished with a coup d'etat what they began with an ambuscade."

Pere Hyacinthe tells all the story of his career at Geneva. When called thither, in November, 1872, by the sect of Liberal Catholics, he hesitated for two months. But the congregation offered terms irresistible. "We do not call you among us," they wrote, "to impose on you the lightest chain. On the contrary, we ask you to come for the purpose of enlightening and guiding us. The new Church, therefore, will be what you make it." I suppose few theologians could resist the temptation of founding a Church really new, of moulding a fresh religion which shall combine all the merits of all that exist with separate and special virtues to be evolved from moral consciousness, and no vices. Pere Hyacinthe came to Geneva, and at first he had great success. But alongside of his congregation sprung up another, which was in truth Protestant, which seemed to Pere Hyacinthe anarchical. But, after a public refusal, he accepted the cure of Geneva. "That," says he, "was my fault. It was real—it was great. I ask forgiveness of it from God and man." He still believed in his Church and himself. He thought he could make of it the ideal Communion. But others saw more clearly his weakness and withdrew. Then Pere Hyacinthe did not hesitate to throw up his charge. Writing to the Government of Geneva, he said, "Attached from my very inmost life to the Catholic Church, in which I was baptised, of which I desire the reform, not the overthrow, convinced, by an experience sufficiently prolonged, that the spirit prevailing in the Liberal Catholic Church of Geneva is neither Catholic in religion nor Liberal in politics, I have the honor to lay before you my resignation of the cure."

It was accepted, and Pere Hyacinthe has now his own small flock, which he is said to lead by very roundabout courses. Those who knew him at the height of his fame are least surprised at the catastrophe. There is another side to the dispute, of course. Pere Hyacinthe remains a monk, not only ignorant of the world's affairs, but incapable of understanding them. I have heard that the first quarrel rose between him and his trustees about the possession of the church building, which the Cure could not believe to be any one's property except his own. And there is, too, that strange tale of a retraita passed in the Grand Chartreux Monastery, or agonies of penance at the feet of the Superior, of Masses celebrated by the community for the peace of their visitor's mind. Pere Hyacinthe does not see aught extraordinary in all this; but it is not strange that hard-headed Switzers should begin to doubt whether such a man is quite fitted to guide them safely.

THE other day, Sam Bowles went to church in Springfield, Mass., and, feeling the effects of his severe editorial labors through the week, went to napping. By and by he was awakened by the preacher, who struck his desk and shouted: "Who shall be able to stand up in the presence of the Lord on that awful day?" And Sam Bowles, rising in his pew, remarked: "Charles Francis Adams is the only man that can do it, and I nominate him for the position."

THE FEAST OF THE DEAD.

Heathen Rites at a Chinese Cemetery in San Francisco—Strange and Outlandish Ceremonies.

(From the San Francisco Bulletin.)

The Chinese Autumnal Festival over the dead of their race which commenced on Sunday week reached its most interesting point last Thursday. From daylight until noon the road to Lone Mountain was literally alive with pedestrians and express wagons, packed with the elite and rabble of Chinatown, roasted hogs of every description of Chinese provisions. The old trick of the Hibernian expressman of occasionally capsizing a vehicle and mixing pigtails and pork in an uncomfortable mass, was, in two cases, successfully tried. One of the vehicles chartered and loaded by Madam Le Chong and eight rosy-cheeked chattels, hilarious with expectation of a day of rest, in endeavoring to weather the corner of Dupont and Geary streets, alighted in an unceremonious manner, and the madam sustained some severe bruises, to judge by the play of her tongue and the shake of her fist at the horse, cart and driver. They, however, climbed in again, and, hanging on by tooth and toe nail, went off at a three-minute gait, to the great amusement of the spectators.

By 11 o'clock in the morning, the wooden altar, near the center of the cemetery, was surrounded by a large heathen band, and a liberal store of fish, flesh and fowl, not to mention stacks of cakes and candies. On one side of the altar, if so it might be called, was a large stove, over which a prominent functionary busied himself in making tea for the entire crowd. Joss sticks were burning upon the altar, and on three sides candles burned, illuminating the figures of three deities—the one on the west representing what answers in their theology to our devil, and whom they evidently think it necessary to propitiate before proceeding with their worship over the individual graves. Towards the East, or rising sun, another less hideous figure, representing the mighty spirit of God; and on the South an insignificant, good-natured, porcelain image, representing some local spiritual functionary. Provisions were heaped before seven of these figures, and an incantation performed before them, severally, by these four men, after which, to the horrible music of a small celestial band, they repaired to the individual graves, the relations of the deceased at each tomb taking a principal part.

The oldest female relative (if there were any females present) danced about the grave several times, as though stung by a hornet, descanting on the virtues of the departed. After this she deposited on the grave narrow strips of yellow paper (yellow being the imperial color), and upon this the provisions brought by the relatives were placed, if relatives were present. If they were not, the spirit of the person had to be contented with slices of the hogs which had been brought out for that purpose. The male relative then poured some wine on the grave; the priest stuck up some lighted joss sticks, and muttered and doubled himself up, and then the fantastic procession passed to another grave. A few individuals, who indulged in the meantime in a quiet smoke, were stationed at different points in the cemetery to protect the altar and visited graves and engage the hoodlums, who seemed imbued with the idea that the ceremonies were instituted solely for their amusement. Two policemen had been chartered for the occasion, but not being omnipresent, the playful denizens of Tar Flat had many a sly shot at poor John, and in one instance struck the arch fiend at the altar with a big rock, upon which he bit the dust amid the simple but plaintive wailings of the heathen and the triumphant crowing of the hoodlums, who seemed elated at the thought of cobble-stoning the Devil with success.

After visiting as many graves as practicable, in accordance with the requirements of a Celestial day of labor, the assembly met at the altar and enjoyed a simple collation of gritted cat, chow-chow and cold tea, during which time the ladies reposed under parasols, which protected them from the sun's rays and cobble-stones. At the end of the frugal and recherche banquet they gathered up the provisions, that there might be no free lunch at the expense of the nation, scrambled into their express wagons, and returned to their firesides a little faster than was compatible with the solemnity of the occasion and the safety of their persons.

THE TRUTHFUL PILOT.

Something Hitherto Unheard of in Natural History.

[From the Vicksburg Herald.]

The passenger, who was going down the big river for the first time in his life, secured permission to climb up beside the pilot, a grim old grayback who never told a lie in his life.

"Many alligators in this river?" inquired the stranger, after a look around.

"Not so many now, since they got to shootin' 'em for their hides and taller," was the reply.

"Used to be lots, eh?"

"I don't want to tell you about 'em stranger," replied the pilot, sighing heavily.

"Why?"

"'Cause you'd think I was a-lyin' to you, and that's sumthin' I never do. I kin cheat at keerds, drink whiskey or chaw poor terbacker, but I can't lie."

"Then there used to be lots of 'em?" inquired the passenger.

"I'm most afraid to tell ye, Mister, but I've counted 'leven hundred allygaters to the mile from Vicksburg cl'ar down to Orleans! That was years ago, afore a shot was ever fired at 'em."

"Well, I don't doubt it," replied the stranger.

"And I've counted 3,459 of 'em on one sand bar!" continued the pilot. "It looks big to tell, but a Government surveyor was aboard, and he checked 'em off as I called out."

"I haven't the least doubt of it," said the passenger as he heaved a sigh.

"I'm glad of that, stranger. Some fellers would think I was a liar when I'm telling the solemn truth. This used to be a paradise for alligators, and they were so thick that the wheels of the boat killed an average of forty-nine to the mile."

"Is that so?"

"True as Gospel, mister! I used to almost feel sorry for the cursed brutes, 'cause they'd cry out e'en most like a human being. We killed lots of 'em, as I said, and hurt a pile more. I sailed with one captain, who allus carried a thousand bottles of liniment to throw over to the wounded ones!"

"He did?"

"True as you live, he did. I don't 'spect I'll ever see another such a kind, Christian man. And the alligators got to know the Nancy Jane, and to know Capt. Tom and they'd swim out and rub their tails agin the boat an' purr like a cat an' look up and try to smile!"

"They would?"

"Solemn truth," stranger. "And once when we grounded on a bar, with an opposition boat right behind, the alligators gathered around, got under her stern, and humped her clean over the bar by a grand push! It looks like a big story, but I never told a lie yet, and I never shall. I wouldn't lie for all the money you could put aboard this boat."

There was a painful pause, and after awhile the pilot continued:

"Our injines gin out once, and a crowd of alligators took a towline and hauled us forty-five miles up stream to Vicksburg!"

"They did?"

"And when the news got along the river that Captain Tom was dead, every alligator in the river draped his left ear with mud as a badge of mournin', and lots of 'em pined away and died!"

The passenger left the pilot house with the remark that he didn't doubt the statement, and the old man gave the wheel a turn, and replied:

"Thar's one thing I won't do for love nor money, and that's make a liar of myself. I was brung up by a good mother, and I'm going to stick to the truth if this boat doesn't make a cent."

CHURCH AND STATE.

The Duties of Catholics at the Polls.

In a lecture recently delivered in St. Louis, Rev. Father Henning said:—"It is the duty of every Catholic to vote for a Catholic candidate; for one who is not opposed to the Catholic religion; who is not an enemy of the Church; and it is the duty of every faithful Catholic to vote against those Catholics who are enemies of our Church and of our holy faith. The enemies of the Church have already given us an inkling of what they are going to do. They are going to make an issue which will create a fearful amount of bad blood, and I am sorry to say that this issue has been made most loudly from the lips of one who calls himself the President of these United States. This issue is the question of education, and this issue will be nothing else but a cry against Popery; a cry against the Catholic faith; a cry against the increase of Catholicity in America. It is nothing else but a war. We must make use of all the legitimate means in our power in this struggle that we must face like men—not violence, not revolution, but the ballot that we, as citizens of the United States, have the right to use as we please. We have the right to act according to the dictates of our religion; and if we are good Catholics, we will fight according to our faith. It is a great shame when Catholic voters allow themselves to be bribed with a few dollars or a few drinks of whisky; it is a great shame when Catholics perform their duty as citizens without any regard to the holy faith. Our duty as Catholics is to work for our religion, for the increase of Catholicity, for the promotion of the faith, for the Christian education of our children, for the success of Catholicity in America; and to do this, not by illegitimate means, but those that are given to us by the Constitution and laws of the land."

MOODY AND SANKEY.

Services at Talmage's Tabernacle.

Wednesday's New York Herald says fully four thousand people were present at the meeting held at Talmage's Tabernacle Tuesday morning. The evangelists hold their evening meetings at the Rink in Brooklyn. During the entire service people stood in all the aisles and around the sides of the church. The meeting was opened by the singing of the 125th hymn, beginning:—

I waited for the Lord, my God,
And patiently did bear;
At length to me He did incline
My voice and try to hear.

After the hymn Mr. Moody requested the congregation to join in silent prayer in response to the following requests which had been handed in: "A widow requests prayer for her two sons that they may be converted." "A mother requests prayer for her two sons and daughters; also for a sick son, that he may be restored." "A sister requests prayer for a brother who is drinking hard, that he may see the evil of his ways." "Prayer is requested in behalf of a dear friend, who is gone so far in drunkenness that it is impossible for him to resist the temptation." After a few moments of silent prayer for these requests, a prayer was offered by E. W. Howley. Then the twenty-ninth hymn of the collection was sung. Mr. Moody, following, said:

"There are a great many gifts we don't get by asking. Suppose a child comes to its mother and asks her to give him a piece of bread, and then goes off immediately to his play. The mother thinks the child is not very hungry, and goes on with her sewing. He comes again and asks her, and goes on playing, and she still keeps on with her sewing. But, by-and-by, he is real hungry, and he throws down his toy and takes hold of her and says, "Mother, come." Now he has got to seeking. He begun by asking. What we want is to get beyond the first class; let us get to seeking, and if it does not come, find out the reason. But here another verse needs to come in—"If I garner iniquity in my heart then you will not hear me, much less answer me."

PUT AWAY YOUR SIN

and see how quick God will answer your prayers. If God has not answered your prayers and your hearts are not revived, let us not rest till we find the reason. So let us have a seeking class. But what we want more than all is the knocking class. A great many people lock up their most precious things in safes at night. It may be that God keeps His best blessings under lock and key, and we must ask for them. What we want is prayer that shall bring the fear of God before the people. If the Holy Ghost comes and we seek and knock God will not disappoint us. There is the promise. The door seems made of granite, but knock and keep knocking and it shall be opened to you.

A HEART-KNOCKING ADDRESS.

Mr. Sankey then gave a short address, saying, "I think I hear a sound of knocking this morning in my own heart. It is by that pierced hand my brother referred to in his prayer. He is knocking all the night long. Open the door ere he passes by. He is knocking there now. Allow me to sing a little hymn:—

Knocking, knocking, who is there?
Waiting, waiting, oh how fair.
'Tis a pilgrim, strange and kingly,
Never such was seen before;
Ah! my soul, for such a wonder,
Wilt thou not undo the door.

Mr. Moody again announced a few moments for silent prayer, and begged those who had any request for prayer to state them.

After the silent prayer Mr. Moody asked all those who wished to be prayed for to rise. About half the congregation rose and remained standing while Mr. Moody delivered a short and impressive prayer. Dr. Fulton then prayed and Rev. Mr. Haines delivered a short address and prayer. During this last prayer, thirty-five men wished to be prayed for, rose, and the meeting closed with the singing of the Doxology.

test Advices Concerning Money and Stock Matters.

FICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, THURSDAY, October 28, 1875.

There was little that was unusual trans- ing at the banks yesterday. They still ort the deposits as very favorable, with a moderate discount demand. Yet thing is mentioned at the banks that is y noteworthy—the cheerful appearance the business public. The gloom and ression of months past has yielded to ghter prospects and better hopes. From this the observing cashiers argue a bet- state of affairs, even in the future. ere can be but little doubt that it is an uence that will be felt.

At Chicago, says the Tribune: Though parently quiet, a very large business is ng done at the banks. The beautiful ather of the last week stimulated trade all departments. The calls from coun- correspondents, both for discounts and rency, gradually increased up to Satur- , and opened heavy yesterday morning. lers to place funds in New York are large—a thing which, owing to the akness and low price of exchange, bank- are very ready to do. While the drafts on the city for money are active, re- pts of produce are equally so. Our mercial columns show an aggregate of rly 500,000 bushels yesterday. The spects of a serious rise in winter freights l doubtless hurry forward all kinds of duce, and we should not be surprised see receipts nearly doubled within the t few days. Those who expect to real- before navigation closes will send for- rd their produce as fast as possible.

In Philadelphia, the Ledger reports: A her rate for money, now that it is con- ed a "bull market" for stocks has set at New York, it is predicted must soon ow. The Financial Chronicle claims s as one of the results of the defeat of lation at the recent election in Ohio, l that, among other things, capital is ing some of that mischievous timidity ich has paralyzed its movements since panic of 1873, and the inflationist agi- ion which succeeded it. The sensitive- s and langour of the inflation epidemic ms to be abating, and in the activity w visible in the precincts of the stock rket here and at New York and Boston see the beginning of a hopeful recuper- on. Another sign is lower gold, which, for the defeat of inflation in Ohio, it is ieved by many persons intelligent in h matters would have gone to 120, or her, with severe fluctuations up and wn, to the injury of all business. The rrent rates for certain classes of paper the street, for medium amounts, are ad- nced a little. The larger banking uses continue to quote at 4a5 per cent. call loans, strictly first-class two-name per at 6 per cent., strictly first-class sin- -name paper at 6a7 per cent., loans on vernment collateral at 5 per cent., do. on first-class bonds and stocks at 6 per t. The banks now very generally have l employment among their customers all their loanable funds, and little or thing is reported under 6 per cent.

NEW YORK, October 27, 1875.

The customs receipts were $292,000. The Assistant Treasurer disbursed $341,- 0. The clearings were $48,000,000. erling was firm at 478@483. Gold ad- nced from 115⅞ to 116⅛, reacted to 115⅞, d closed at 116. The rates paid for bor- wing were 1-64 and 1-32 per diem, and 3, 8 and 6 per cent. per annum. The in- eased firmness of the market to-day was ue to a belief among bulls that the strin- ency of money at San Francisco and the re at Virginia City would check ship- ents of gold from the Pacific coast to this oint, although some affected to see some urchases on account of the syndicate. To- orrow the syndicate have to settle with he Treasury for $14,897,200 1862s, being he remaining balance of that issue. It is nderstood that about $2,500,000 gold will e used in this settlement.

Government bonds were strong and igher to-day, with an increased demand rom institutions and individual investors. The supply in the hands of dealers is very mall, and the market has a rising tend- ncy. Railroad bonds were firm and in ood demand. Harlem coupon firsts sold t 113¾, Erie second at 100¼, Union Pacific irsts at 102, sinking funds at 88½, Central Pacific at 104¼, Chicago and Northwestern onsolidated at 96, do. gold bonds at 86, Rock Island sevens at 108¾, Fort Wayne seconds at 108, and Burlington, Cedar Rap- ds & Minnesota first at 35. Missouri Pa- ific firsts declined from 74 to 73. State onds were nominal, except Tennessees, which are better.

The stock market opened strong and higher on an increased volume of business. Lake Shore was the leading feature, ad- vancing from 60⅞ to 62⅜. Western Union rose from 76⅞ to 77⅜, Northwestern from 37 3-4 to 38⅜, St. Paul from 34⅜ to 34 7-8, Ohios from 16⅞ to 17 1-8, Erie from 17 1-8 to 89 1-8, Pacific Mail from 40 1-2 to 41 1-4, and Michigan Central from 62⅜ to 63. Hannibal & St. Joseph declined to 20, and Missouri Pacific to 8 1-8. Union Pacific fell off from 66⅛ to 65⅛, and later recovered to 65 3-4. At the second call prices showed a reaction of 1-4 to 1-2 per cent. from the highest point of the day. Stocks at the close were firm, and, as compared with the closing quotations of yesterday, prices showed an advance of 1-4 to 1 5-8 per cent. in some cases, the greatest improvement being in Lake Shore and Erie. The former closed at 62⅜, after selling at 60⅞ and 62 7-8, and the latter at 18⅜ after selling at 17 1-8 and 17 3-4. Pacific Mail reacted to 40⅜, and closed at 40⅜. Western Union fell off to 76⅜, and rallied to 76⅜a76 3-4. Union Pa- cific sold at 65 1-4, but closed at 65⅛ to 65 3-4. Northwest was steady at 37 3-4, Rock Island at 103 3-4, Michi- gan Central at 62⅜, Delaware, Lack- awanna & Western at 118 3-4, and New Jersey Central at 106⅜. Ohios fell off to 16 3-8, and finally recovered to 16 3-4.

The receipts of the Rock Island road are increasing about $20,000 per week. The bears made a stubborn resistance to the rising tendency of the market to-day, but their efforts were poorly rewarded as a general thing. There is still a large short interest outstanding in Pacific Mail, Lake Shore and other leading shares.

The transactions on the Stock Exchange aggregated 228,000 shares, of which 60,000 were Pacific Mail, 20,000 Western Union, 5,000 Northwest common, 40,000 Erie, 81,- 000 Lake Shore, 4,000 Ohios, 3,500 Union Pacific, and 3,500 Missouri Pacific.

Condition of the Markets at Home and Abroad.

DAILY REPORT OF PITTSBURGH MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, WEDNESDAY, October 27, 1875.

The general produce markets present but little that is really new or important; with regard to the home trade there are no new development. The policy of carrying stock only for immediate use is still adhered to by country merchants, which distributes trade more evenly throughout the year, and caused many to underestimate the condi- tion of business. This policy, however, is a healthful one. Stocks are thus kept under easy control, payments are more prompt, and values rule with greater steadiness.

APPLES—Are quoted in a jobbing way at $3a3,50 per barrel for fair to good, and $4a4,50 for prime to choice.

BEANS—Are quoted at $1,80a1,85 per bushel to the trade, and 10a12c additional for small lots.

BUTTER—Continues dull and prices are weak with the supply accumulating, and a strange disposition to realize. Sales of prime to choice rolls, 25a27; medium to good, 20a22c.

CHEESE—Is steady, with regular job- bing sales at 13½a14c for August make of Ohio Factory, and 14a14½c for September; New York Goshen, 15c.

EGGS—The market continues dull and unchanged; fresh receipts quoted at 27a28c, with but few sales above 27c. Pickled are selling at 20a25c.

FLOUR—Is quiet and unchanged. Old spring wheat, $7,00a7,25; new ditto, $6.50a 7; old winter wheat, $7a7,25; new ditto, $6,50a7. Rye Flour, $5,50a5,75. Buck- wheat Flour, 2a3¾ cents per pound.

GROCERIES—Late advices from New Orleans report increased receipts of Mo- lasses and lower prices. Coffee is reported firmer in New Orleans, but the latest re- ports from Rio show a considerable decline at that point. The drawback allowed on Sugar for export has been put back to where it was, and the market is firmer in conse- quence. However, if we are informed cor- rectly, this action of the Treasury depart- ment, in this respect, is only temporary, as an investigation is being made.

PITTSBURGH LIVE STOCK MARKET.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, WEDNESDAY, October 27, 1875.

ARRIVALS.

Following shows the arrival for the week ending at noon to-day, and to afford a com- parison we append those of last week also:

	This week.	Last week.
Cattle	431 cars.	360 cars.
Hogs	209 "	199 "
Sheep	69 "	75 "
Total	719 "	634 "

Briggs, Dock & Drum, Wholesale Dealers and Commission Merchants for the sale of Live Stock, at the Central Stock Yards, East Liberty, repoted as follows:

CATTLE.

The run, as will be seen, shows an in- crease of 71 cars, as compared with last week, but the increase consisted of through consignments; of yard cattle there were 245 cars, against 186 last week, and of through consignments 158 cars, against 163 cars. The sales were 2,474 head, against 3,047 last week. However, notwithstanding the sup- ply was not quite up to that of last week, trade has not improved any; indeed, many operators report it even worse, and it must be admitted that the general posi- tion of the market was unfavorable to sell- ers. The attendance of country buyers was comparatively small, and regular shippers in consequence of the very unfavorable re- ports from the east, were exceedingly bear- ish—some of them insisting on a reduction of half a cent per pound. The offerings con- sisting mainly of the common and medium grades, and for these prices were possibly a shade lower; but prime beeves, of which the supply was small, may be fairly quoted up to last week's prices. Stockers and feeding cattle continue to sell more readily —at better prices relatively than butcher cattle, but it is apprehended that the de- mand for these will drop before long, as the season advances. We are informed on good authority that there were cattle sold in Philadelphia for less than was bid here for them last week, and New York was little, if any, better.

NEW YORK STOCK-YARDS—RAILROAD COMBINATION.

Considerable complaint is being made in live stock circles, in consequence of the manipulation by some of the trunk line railroads, with a view of monopolizing the yardage of stock at New York, as well as the carrying trade. A New York paper, of Tuesday, says: "Conspicuously posted in the several market places were the recently promulgated circular orders from the gener- al freight agents of the Pennsylvania Cen- tral, Erie and New York Central and Hud- son River Railroads, instructing the freight agents of the respective roads mentioned to receive and bill all live stock, except horses, intended for this market or for slaughter- ing here, to the care of some one of the three stock yard companies now managing the stock yards which are owned by the rail- roads, so that the yardage charges may be collected on all the stock, whether sold in the yards or taken direct from cars to other yards or to the slaughter-house."

HOGS.

Under the influence of liberal receipts, and with a supply in excess of the demand, the market declined every day last week; on Saturday the market closed dull; York- ers, 7a7,35; good mixed, 7½; Philadelphia hogs, 8a8¼. On Monday, the receipts hav- ing been quite liberal on Sunday, trade was again dull, but there was no quotable change in prices. On Tuesday forenoon trade continued dull, but later in the day, in consequence of an improved demand, the market stiffened up, closing with all sold, but there was no perceptible improvement in prices. To-day (Wednesday) the weather being cool and favorable, sellers were enabled to advance prices 10a15c per cwt. There was no falling off in the re- ceipts, and with an increased demand, which was caused mainly by the favorable turn in the weather, the market ruled in buyers favor, and the indications just now are that the advance will be maintained during the balance of the week unless the arrivals should come in much larger.

PITTSBURGH PETROLEUM MARKET.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, WEDNESDAY, October 27, 1875.

The market for both Crude and Refined was very firm to-day, and the former has been still further advanced. Refined quoted at 13 3-4c in New York; 13¾c in Philadel- phia, and 13½c in Baltimore. Crude at $1,70 for immediate shipment at Parker; $1,41, Conduit Certificates, and $1,40 for United.

The Barrel market continues dull, but unchanged; countries $1,25a1,35; city make $1,40a1,45. Some of the journeyman coopers are reported on a strike.

The foreign outlook continues favorable, and there is no reason apparent why there should not be an active export demand for refined during the balance of the season. The quantities of refined taken for con- sumption from Bremen, Antwerp, Ham- burg, Rotterdam and Stettin for the week ending Saturday last aggregated 65,000 bar- rels, against 50,000 the same week last year —an increase of about 30 per cent. The quantity taken from the same ports from October 2d to October 23d inclusive, this year, was 275,000 barrels, and from January 1st to October 23d, this year, 1,692,000 bbls. This quantity is upward of 35 per cent. larger than for the same period of last year.

The Wheat Prospect—Present as Well as Prospectively.

A correspondent communicates the fol- lowing to the Chicago Tribune: "We have often been asked what we think of wheat. Do you think the prices will rule high? To this question we have almost invariably answered, No; not at present. We will give you some of our reasons for thinking as we do:

We believe there is at least 33⅓ per cent. of the old crop in the hands of farmers.

This may seem at first an exaggeration; but after carful consideration we think you will agree with us. There is no way in which we can arrive at a correct estimate except from reference.

It will be remembered that last year's crop was the largest ever raised—that from the close of harvest up to the present time there was no inducement to sell. The crop opened at exceedingly low prices—the prices running from 82½c to 90c up to the close of the year; in fact, up to the time of reported damage to the winter wheat crop by excessive cold weather. At this time there were exaggerated reports of terrible damage to the crop; so much so that it was generally believed that the winter-wheat crop was ruined. Under these reports, farmers held back their wheat, expecting to realize fabulous prices.

Later in the season, and during the plant- ing time for spring wheat, severe storms and floods caused delay in planting. There was another scare, giving a greater assur- ance for high prices. Up to harvest, the weather continued unsettled, and at some times bad; and just as the wheat was ripe, and only partly harvested, we had terrible storms, causing delay in harvesting, and serious damage to the wheat. According to the reports, the crop has been three times ruined, and yet prices have never attained a point sufficiently high to induce the farm- ers to sell freely. In our opinion, there has been as much of an exaggeration in these reports as was the report that corn was all marketed last March, and, as there was none in the country, it must bring very high prices during the summer. Instead of this, we have continued heavy receipts up to the present writing, and they still con- tinue at the rate of 300 to 400 cars per day.

The occurring of the bad weather has, however, delayed the delivery of this crop from 30 to 60 days. Fortunately there was enough on hand to supply all demands dur- ing that time. But it reduces the demand just so much for this crop.

Our crop has only now fairly commenced to move. Our receipts now are far in ex- cess of any corresponding time, and it is too when freights by lake, canal, railroad and ocean are advancing. Our present supply of wheat on hand seems to be large. It is reported that the stocks in warehouse in England and Scotland are large—held on speculation—and that the quantity in tran- sit is also large. In this country there seems to be no lack of supplies—indeed, they are large, and daily accumulating. According to the latest reports we have in round numbers:

	Bushels.
In store and afloat in New York City and harbor	2,500,000
On the canals	1,800,000
Afloat on the lakes, estimated	2,500,000
Making a total of	6,800,000

From 50 to 65 per cent. of this wheat is of the lower grades—No. 3 rejected, and un- merchantable.

At St. Louis, Toledo and Detroit, we also notice large arrivals of wheat; much of it we believe to be of inferior quality, as far- mers invariably market their poor wheat first.

That the present crop was damaged there is no question, but with the increase in the crop of Minnesota, reported from 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 in excess of last year; Kansas estimated at from 5,000,000 to 10,000,000 in excess of last year; Michigan with a large crop of fine wheat; Wisconsin, particularly the Northern part, with a large excess; with the excess of the Southern States, with the surplus left over from last year, we think there is no occasion for expecting very high prices for the present, particularly while the business of the world remains in its now demoralized condition."

L. A. WELSH, Sergeant Signal Service, U. S. A.

THE stage of water last evening was two feet three inches by the marks. No arri- vals, and the light-house steamer Lily was the only departure.

THE John L. Rhoads and Wild Duck are loading for St. Louis to leave on the first water.

THE Mallie Ragon will enter the Wheel- ing and Parkersburg trade in place of the Courier.

CAPT. WM. DWYER, an old-time boat- man, died at St. Louis on Monday, aged 66 years. He had been off the river for some years.

CAPT. I. R. WHITTAKER, who was laid up for a couple of weeks with a severe at- tack of inflammatory rheumatism, is able to get around again.

THE towboat John F. Dravo, owned by Capt. Thomas Chester, encountered a snag near Big Sandy, on Tuesday, and sank in about 12 feet of water.

THE Mary Bell left Memphis on Sunday night; she added 1,000 bales to her cargo there and has heavy engagements below, and will nodoubt go into New Orleans with a big trip.

THE widow of Captain John Mulrine will receive five thousand dollars from the American Life Insurance Company, of Philadelphia, in which her husband's life was insured.

CAPT. MART. COULSON, of the Upper Missouri steamer Far West, has arrived home. All the Coulson line steamers have been laid up at Yankton, excepting the Durfee; she is due at St. Louis now.

PRESS SQUIRES, an old and respected en- gineer, died in Covington, Ky., Sunday night, of chronic diarrhea. He had follow- ed the vocation of an engineer on the West- ern rivers for the past 35 years, and was known among his associates as a quiet, so- ber and industrious man.

THE Cincinnati Commercial, of Tuesday, says: Captain Sweeney has changed the destination of the Fanchon from Arkansas river to New Orleans. She departs for the latter point to-morrow. Elijah Pierce and Ed. Patterson pilot the Fanchon to New Or- leans. The Fanchon is economical on fuel, consuming only 250 bushels every twenty- four hours. Steamboatmen generally are of the opinion that Captain Sweeney has the best poor man's boat afloat.

A MADISON dispatch, under date of the 25th, says: Captain Truslow's new steamer Dawn was fully completed to-day. She was inspected yesterday by Inspector Hough- ton, of Louisville, and pronounced O. K. She leaves for Cincinnati this evening to load for New Orleans. She is a model of beauty and convenience, 160 feet long, 31 feet floor, 4 feet hold. Capt. Truslow ex- presses himself highly pleased. The steam- er Laurel was launched to-day, and the steamer Andy Baum taken out for caulk- ing. River falling slowly.

HOME NEWS.

Singular Accident.

Yesterday afternoon a singular accident happened to the locomotive of the 3:15 McKeesport Accommodation on the Connellsville Railroad. The train had proceeded as far as the Salt Works when the passengers were startled by a peculiar hissing sound as though the boiler was making preparations to explode. An investigation showed that a heavy iron rod or bar had broken in such a way as to puncture a hole in the boiler, letting out the steam and water. The engine was disabled by the accident, and the train was delayed about twenty minutes until the Uniontown Accommodation came along, when the disabled engine and cars were switched on a side track, and the passengers taken on board.

A Prospective Musical Treat.

A rare treat is in store for those who can appreciate the highest style of vocal and instrumental music. The North Avenue M. E. Church, Allegheny, has just been supplied with a powerful new organ, which comes from the celebrated manufactory of Hook & Co., Boston. The organ will be put in place within a week or two, and it is proposed when this is accomplished to give a grand inaugural concert. The programme will consist of vocal and instrumental music. The instrument will be manipulated by some of the best organists in either city. The choir of the church will be assisted in the vocal music by the choir of Christ Church, the Allegheny Quartette Club, and by several ladies and gentlemen of high reputation in musical circles, who are already preparing for the occasion. It promises to be one of the best concerts ever given in this section.

River Dam Model.

Yesterday Col. W. M. Merrill, in charge of the improvements of the Ohio river, exhibited to a number of the members of the Ohio River Improvement Commissioners and members of the Coal Exchange, the model of a dam which is at present in successful operation on several of the large rivers in France, and which is constructed on what is know as the Chanoline system, and is used on the largest water route in France, on the river Seine, between the cities of Paris and Havre. Nearly all the river men who witnessed its workings and heard Col. Merrill's explanation of it, were favorably impressed with it, and believe that a trial will meet with success. Among those present were Gen. J. K. Moorhead, Jos. Walton, Geo. H. Thurston, Gen. Thos. J. Power, Edmund Blanchard, Addison Lysle, and Captain Speer. It will be placed on exhibition at the Exposition in a few days, where all who wish to see it can be gratified.

AN AWFUL ACCIDENT.

A Wife Instantly Killed in Allegheny and Her Husband Maimed for Life.

Last evening another of those horrible accidents occurred at one of the railroad crossings in Allegheny, which resulted in the instant death of a lady named Mrs. Smith, and the maiming for life of her husband, Mr. Henry H. Smith. It appears that shortly before 7 o'clock Mr. Smith and wife left their residence, at No. 156 Sheffield street, with the intention of going to the Exposition. While walking across the crossing of the P. Ft. W. & C. R. R. on Washington avenue they got front of the Chicago Express and were struck by the locomotive and both knocked down. Before they could get out of the way the wheels passed over the head of Mrs. Smith, killing her instantly, and cutting off the top of her head. One of her arms was also cut off, as was one of her husband's arms. Mr. Smith was at once removed to his home and medical aid summoned. The remains of his wife were also removed to her late home and the coroner notified. Mr. Smith is the cashier of the Pittsburgh Locomotive Works, in the Sixth ward, Allegheny. Mrs Smith was a lady of culture and refinement, and her sad end will be mourned by a large circle of friends.

SUDDEN DEATHS.

Unexpected Decease of Two Persons in Allegheny.

About four o'clock yesterday afternoon a man named Patrick Finney, who has been in the employ of Street Commissioner Tyson, of Allegheny, in the capacity of sewer drop repairman, suddenly dropped to the ground while working on Madison avenue, at the corner of Gerst alley, and before medical aid could be summoned, expired. The body was removed to his late home, No. 53 First street, and the Coroner notified. Deceased was fifty years of age, and leaves a wife and three children. The shock was so great to his wife, when the body was brought home, that she became insane and ran out of the house. Detective Miller happened to be near and caught her and handed her over to her relatives. The coroner held an inquest on the body last evening and the jury returned a verdict of death from heart disease.

Last evening an old woman, named Mrs. Hull, who resided at No. 33 Darragh street, Allegheny, suddenly fell from her chair and expired in a few minutes. Her death was caused by apoplexy. The coroner held an inquest this morning.

FIRE IN CITY HALL.

A Very Mysterious Affair in the Treasurer's Office, Allegheny.

This morning, shortly after midnight, Lieut. Syllenberg and officer Brooks, of the Allegheny police force, had occasion to go back into the lock-up, under the City Building, when they were surprised to hear water trickling down into the vagrant's room. This room is directly under the City Treasurer's office. On examining into the matter it was found that the water came through the floor from the Treasurer's office. The officers at once went outside the building and raised one of the windows on the Federal street side of the office, which are never fastened, and entered. They were surprised, on opening the window, to see volumes of smoke coming out, and on getting inside they were hardly able to breathe. After some search they found that there was a fire on the inside of the iron wash stand in the private office. The stand is located in the northeast corner of the office, and it was so hot that they could not touch it. When the door was opened the flames leaped out, and the officers had great difficulty in extinguishing the flames.

The washstand had been filled with either election papers or leaves out of the tax books, nearly all of which were destroyed and the floor burned. The lead water pipe had been melted by the heat, and from thence came the first stream of water which led to the discovery of the fire.

How the fire ever got there is very strange, as the building is heated by steam. On making an examination of the office a number of the drawers of the desk in the front office were open, and some of the Treasurer's books lay scattered over the floor. The whole affair is very mysterious, and should be thoroughly investigated.

THE EXPOSITION.

The Sixteenth Day—Indian Summer—Gone Back on the Show—The People Still Coming out—The Flower Premiums—General Notes.

Contrary to universal desire the sun failed to make out doors or in-doors bright yesterday, and the people had to be content with a dash of wintry weather. It looks somewhat as though Indian Summer had gone back on the Exposition, but the attractions are too many, for the weather and the people are induced to turn out in goodly numbers. It was somewhat chilly yesterday morning, but later in the day the hot air began to temper the atmosphere until it was not uncomfortably cool. The attendance was about as large as on the previous day, when over eight thousand persons passed through the doors.

A NEW ATTRACTION IN POWER HALL.

Power Hall is soon to have a new attraction. It is a stone saw, and the foundation for it is now being dug, and it is being put up by Emerson, Ford & Co., of Beaver Falls. Every tooth of this wonderful saw contains a diamond, and its style of walking through solid stone will prove an interesting sight.

THE FLOWER PREMIUMS.

The florists were at work again yesterday "looking their prettiest." It was premium day for them, and each exhibitor put his best foot foremost. The result was favorable to Messrs. B. A. Elliott & Co., of No. 114 Market street. They carried off the first premium for the Best Pair of Pyramidial Boquets, not less than fifteen inches high, and the first premium for the best Hand Boquets. Their display was a remarkably fine one. Included in the list of fine flowers were very choice Rosebuds, Camelias and Violets. Their assortment of flowers throughout, however, was one that was conspicuous for brilliancy, exquisite arrangement and general harmony of colors.

BRIEFS.

At the meeting of the Executive Committee held yesterday, a request was received from His Honor Mayor Phillips, asking for the use of Press Headquarters after the Exposition is over, for Sunday School purposes. The request was granted, and a Mission Sunday School will be "run" there by His Honor during the Winter.

FOR THE LADIES.

Looking at the many attractions at the great Exposition, we find the New Elliptic Sewing Machine Company making a fine display of sewing. The New Elliptic comprises more excellencies than many others. The work which is done at the Exposition attests this. The ladies crowd around it, and the locality is generally the rallying point of the fair sex. Their expressions of astonishment at the work done on the New Elliptic Sewing Machines reminds us that there are thousands who are using them daily.

EVANGELICAL ALLIANCE.

Proceedings of the Second Day's Session.

Interesting and Entertaining Addresses Upon a Variety of Topics—Progress of the Revision of the Bible.

The morning session of the Evangelical Alliance yesterday, in the First Presbyterian church, on Wood street, was attended by an audience fully as large, if not larger, than upon the evening previous. The very warm interest manifested in the discussion upon every topic was but natural, when it is remembered that the gentlemen who participated in it are among the shining lights of the religious circles of America. At the conclusion of the opening devotional exercises, Hon. F. R. Brunot called the Alliance to order, and announced the "Reunion of Christendom" as the first topic for discussion. The debate was commenced by Rev. W. I. Buddington, D. D., of Brooklyn, N. Y. who read an affirmative paper bearing upon the subject, taking the ground that in all discussions upon it everything depends on the word unity, which occurs but once in English translations of the Old Testament: "Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity." In the New Testament the one word also occurs, each time in the same chapter of Paul's epistle to the Ephesians: "Endeavoring to keep the unity of the spirit in the peace." The meaning of the word as determined by Scriptural uses, embraces two points, first, that the unity of the Christian churches is full of spiritual life and working force, a disposition of heart effected by the indwelling spirit. Secondly, it is a perfection into which the church is to grow and which is to be the ultimate manifestation of her divine origin and education. In further considering these points, he claimed that the Bible doctrine of unity meant oneness of spirit manifesting itself in oneness of form.

WHAT IS HELD TO.

In further discussing the topic, Dr. Buddington said that while we disavow any intention to unite Christendom by going back to any period of church history, and making the church as then existing the pattern of conformity, we do hold to a reunion of Christendom as taking place after and by means of the several separations which have from time to time divided the church. The mediæval theory of a united church represented by the Reformed Christian Church, and with which some professors of divinity are fascinated, we disavow as the creation of human ambition; as an appendage to the conception of a universal monarchy, represented by that old Roman empire which has only just faded from the face of the earth, by the humiliation of Austria, the victories of Sadowa and Sedan, and the coronation of Frederick of Prussia. There is a better thing in store for the church than historians ever described or poets imagined; a unity grander and more real than though an immaculate and infallible Pope ruled over the universal church. It will be the reunion of Christendom after separation, by the free consent, the instructed wisdom and the holy zeal which are to be the final products of the Saviour's reign over his church. Believing now in the unity of the church as the outgrowth of the wisdom from above, that that is first and pure, then peaceable and gentle, and easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without partiality and without hypocrisy, "we have only to cultivate this wisdom and the fruit of righteousness is sown in peace of them that make peace."

AGREEMENT MORE THAN DIFFERENCES.

The negative side of the question was upheld by Rev. H. D. Ganse, D.D., of New York. He said that union would never be productive of good among the denominations where differences are conscientious. The sects whose differences are only slight and hastily made are already breaking down, but he did not see the large denominations with great conscientious differences coming together, nor did he expect to see it. He favored the union of the various large denominations as much as possible, remembering that their points of agreement are more than their differences. Let not one denomination plant a church in a growing place where there is already a church of another denomination, in order to advance their own, but let it rather place one in a small place where there is no church at all, and thus the whole cause will be the better forwarded. The speaker was interrupted with frequent applause, which his forcibly delivered and well considered remarks brought forth.

President Andrews, of Marietta College, Ohio, said that he was sorry to see that gentlemen who were in favor of union kept it away by building up denominational differences.

Other speeches were made on this subject by Rev. T. H. McElroy, of the Reformed Presbyterian Church, East End, Rev. Mr. Braun, pastor of the German Methodist Episcopal Church, Rev. Wm. Francis, Rev. Mr. Mills and Rev. Dr. Taylor, the latter gentleman closing the discussion. Rev. H. D. Weston, D. D., of Crozier Theological Seminary, who was announced to close the debate, telegraphed that he was unavoidably detained and would not be present.

The business of the morning session being over, the benediction was pronounced and the audience dismissed.

Afternoon Session.

The Alliance reassembled at half-past two o'clock in the afternoon. The first address was from Dr. J. H. Vincent, of New York, on "Increased Efficiency of Sunday Schools." He said that there are serious defects in the present Sunday School system which none are more willing to concede, more prompt to deprecate, and more eager to correct than its most enthusiastic friends. He did not propose to speak, however, of the defects, nor discuss the benefits of the modern Sunday School system. That there are many benefits is undeniable. It exalts the minister, acts upon the family, equalizes society, prepares people to vote right and determine the character and destiny of this great Republic, favors great reforms, and employs in the church tens of thousands of persons. How may the acknowledged defects of the Sunday School system be corrected and its efficiency increased? A correct theory of an agency has a great deal to do with it. There must be a wise conformity to the laws, physical, mental or spiritual, which are involved in the work proposed. Lastly, we must recognize the relation of each agency to other and co-ordinate agencies, and thereby secure a true co-operation. The efficiency of the Sunday School will be increased by a more correct and definite theory as to its aim.

THE CHARACTER OF SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

There are two or three institutions known as Sunday Schools. 1. The "Robert Raikes' Sunday School,"—a missionary agency, union or denominational, designed to reach neglected children of the community. 2. The Children's Bible School,—a Sunday School, union or denominational, designed to reach the children of the church. It is a children's school for Biblical instruction. 3. The Church School or Bible service,—a Sunday School under the direction of the church authorities, designed to reach the old as well as the young, and to incite all to the devout and diligent study of the Holy Scriptures as a means of spiritual growth. These three institutions,—which are often found combined in a single school—are the products. 1. Of the philanthropic movement under Robert Raikes, and 2. Of the great revival movements of the last century, under the influence of which a new impetus was given to the devotional, associated study of the word of God as a means a grace, and after the custom of the apostolic church. The true church school is that department of the church in which young and old study the word of God in order to spiritual strength and usefulness. Notice the difference between Biblical instruction alone and Biblical instruction with reference to spiritual improvement. The former cultivates the intellectual faculties alone. There is a great deal in a good theory. A theory that recognizes the Sunday School is an integral part of the church, and not distinct from it, will do a great deal more for it than a theory which fails to recognize that fact.

UPON WHAT IT DEPENDS.

As a ship depends upon the winds of heaven, as a locomotive depends upon steam for its power, so does the Sunday School depend upon the supernatural power in which we believe. Where there is a spirit of order, vigor, energy, and charming denominational zeal, Sunday Schools will be well sustained. What Sunday School workers need above everything else is an absolute dependence upon the ministry of the Holy Ghost. The wretchedness of the Laodicean Church was because Christ was outside of it. We need to turn our hearts toward the Sun of Righteousness.

The Sunday School work is not spiritual alone, but it is also educational. We need more of the true educational element in Sunday Schools. They ought to be like our homes. They should be of such a character that children from sad, desolate homes and from no homes at all would look forward to them with pleasure, and speak of them with joy and happiness. The home spirit should pervade all Sunday schools, the efficiency of which can also be increased by organization, administration and more thorough instruction. We need also a system of gradation, approximating the system now in use in our public schools. We want primary, medium and senior grades, and in the latter a lecture class. There are a great many who are ashamed to go to Sunday School for fear of being asked questions they cannot answer. If they could go to some class where they could ask questions themselves instead of being asked, they would be very glad to attend. A senior grade for older pupils is wanted, a normal grade in which to instruct our future teachers, and a permanent grade. The importance of old people coming to Sunday school should be warmly enforced.

OTHER NEEDS.

Another necessary thing is a course of church study in Sunday School. We have something that approximates that in our system of International lessons. It is a gratification to know that all over the Christian world we study the same lesson on Sunday, but the International system cannot supply everything needed. We need memory lessons out of the Word of God, and the training of scholars in a series of catechisms in Bible history, chronology, geography, &c.; also an ecclesiastical course of study. I believe in the church and in the Sunday School as a part of it, and that scholars should be trained in the church catechism, church creed, church economy, church work and in old church hymns. We are growing up without knowing the old hymns our fathers sung, than which no modern ones are better. There is no necessity for being afraid that if you train in accordance with a system that you will interfere with the power of the word of God. There is no danger of that. I find when I ride in a Pullman palace car that the power of the locomotive is not diminished because the car is neatly and systematically arranged. I find the most spiritual power in the Sunday Schools where the best system exists.

The boys must be taught to respect the Sunday school. The teacher must not send him off to some other teacher to find out where the lesson is. We have talent in the Sunday schools that the secular schools could not get for $10,000 a year. All it needs is consecration. You elevate the Sunday school and you will elevate the church, and increase its spiritual power and freshness.

CO-OPERATION.

The efficiency of the Sunday School will be increased when it is made to co-operate with co-ordinate agencies, such as the family. If it interfered with the family, I would drop it in a moment. It cannot be a substitute for the family, but it must co-operate with and increase the efficiency of the family. In concluding his address, upon which the very closest attention had been bestowed, Dr. Vincent urged also the co-operation of the Sunday School with the pulpit. He said that every little child should go to church. He did not for one moment believe in the Sunday School as a substitute for the pulpit, but he thought that children should listen to preaching for thorough training in the word of God. He urged attention to the welfare of the Sunday School as contributing to the unity of the holy Catholic church, and finished by saying that the higher we aim the more we shall secure.

BIBLE REVISION.

When Mr. Vincent was through, President Brunot announced that the next topic for discussion was "Bible Revision," and he introduced as the opening speaker Rev. E. V. Gerhart, D.D., of Lancaster, Pa. The paper read by this gentleman gave evidence of careful preparation, deep thought and profound scholarship. He said that no version of the Bible can be the equivalent of the original work. Rightly considered the question of the revision of our English version possesses but little significance directly to the ministry. The translations must be made for the masses of people, and it is more for their benefit that the work is now progressing. The speaker referred to the fact that no book which has been translated into many tongues has preserved its originality and self-authentication to the extent the Bible has. In view of the changes that the English language has undergone in the last three hundred years the version of King James is to be regarded as temporary; as suitable for the Seventeenth and Eighteenth centuries, but not for the present English speaking people. They are entitled to something better, if something better can be given them. In acknowledging the excellencies of the King James version its deficiencies must not be ignored. Some of the errors are slight and others serious. The speaker said that he proposed to note a few of the superfluous additions that have been made by translators. The English Bible is to some extent a comment upon as well as a version of the original.

INSTANCES CITED.

The additions in many instances are not necessary to express the true sense of the original, and are not made in good English either. Among the citations by Dr. Gerhart of instances in which the translator has made additions, are the following, the additions being italicised: I Cor.:14, 34; "Let your women keep silence in the churches; for it is not permitted unto them to speak; but they are commanded to be under obedience, as also saith the law." Dr. Gerhart maintained that the verse would read equally as well if the words italicised were omitted. He considered them superfluous. I. Peter, 1:22: "Seeing ye have purified your souls in obeying the truth through the spirit unto unfeigned love of the brethren, see that ye love one another with a pure heart fervently." This is another instance of the use of superfluous words, the omission of which would not destroy the sense. II Peter, 1, 21; "For the prophecy came not in old time by the will of man; but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost." The equivalent of the adverbial clause "as they were" does not appear in the original and introduces a phase of meaning that does not occur there. Hebrew, 10, 10; "By the which will we are sanctified through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all." "By the which will" and "for all" are added. Good English nor fidelity to translation does not require them. John 8, 24; "I said therefore unto you, that ye shall die in your sins; for if ye believe not that I am he, ye shall die in your sins." In the twenty-eighth verse the same expression occurs, and in both the pronoun "he" is inserted and the breadth of the meaning of the Greek is lost. A number of instances of additions in the Old Testament were also cited by the speaker, only one of which we will reproduce here. Ecclesiastics 12, 13, "Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter; fear God and keep his commandments; for this is the whole duty of man." In the Hebrew the limiting word "duty" is wanted. The teacher says "this is the whole of man," and not his "duty." Dr. Gerhart said that there are many other passages, besides those which he instanced, which reveal the unwarranted freedom of the King James version. The additions are to be divided into two classes, those which weaken and those which change the meaning. Among the people these unnecessary additions serve to mislead the mind.

The speaker consumed considerable time in discussing the relationship existing between the Old and New Testaments, after which he took his seat.

THE WORK PROGRESSING.

The speech of Dr. Schaff, who followed Dr. Gerhart, and who is one of the committee now engaged in revising the Scriptures, was chiefly regarding the manner in which the work is being done. He said: Dr. Gerhart has stated that the Bible ought to be revised. The revision is now in actual process. Our English Bible is the result of half a dozen revisions of the Bible; Wickliffe's, Tyndall's, Coleraine's, Cranmer's, Geneva exiles, the Bishop's, Queen Elizabeth's, and King James', the present one. I have never seen any intelligent gentleman who considered any translation a perfect one. Five years ago the Christian world was not prepared for a revision of the Bible. Now it is. The conditions are changed. The English Bible is common property, used everywhere, and consequently the work of revision ought to be common also. If we should get half a dozen sectional revisions the distractions in Protestant Christendom would be greater than ever, and there are enough of them now. A tacit agreement has taken place between the eminent scholars of all countries that the Bible needs revision. This is owing to two reasons. First, because of the recent discoveries of very old manuscripts relating to the books of the Bible, and second, because of the extraordinary activity of the last fifty years in Biblical scholarship. Old cities spoken of in the Bible have been excavated and laid open. They have yielded their commentaries, shedding light and lustre upon the pages of Scripture.

DENOMINATIONAL CO-OPERATION.

These are the two theoretical or scientific conditions which led to the movement for the revision of the Bible. But there was another condition. The co-operation of denominations which formerly kept apart from each other. The Church of England is taking the lead in the revision of the English version. In 1870 eight Bishops and eight Presbyters were appointed to undertake the work, and authorized to employ all well known Biblical scholars, no matter to what denomination they belonged. These men were divided into two companies. The best Hebrew scholars took the Old Testament and the best Greek scholars the New Testament. They meet once a month, for four days, in Westminster Abbey, and carefully weigh word by word, sentence by sentence, &c. The work is done as carefully and conscientiously as can be done by any body of eminent Christian scholars in any part of the world. They have been at work for five years, have gone through the historical works of the old Bible, and expect to labor for five years yet. The expense is considerable, there being twenty members in each company, but it is met by the press of Oxford, where the Bible will be printed after the revision has been completed.

AMERICAN SCHOLARSHIP IN DEMAND.

Soon after the English companies got started they found it would be policy to invite the co-operation of American scholars in order to insure the acceptance of the work in this country. The negotiations then commenced resulted in an organization here similar to the English one. It is composed of the finest scholars and greatest students in the country, many of whom are connected with our leading educational institutions. It has been divided into two companies also, meets at the Bible House, in New York, and spends two or three days in discussion every month. England sends us their revision, which is strictly confidential, of course,—we cannot even tell it to our wives—and we revise it and send them our notes, which they revise in turn. When the work is done a committee of conference will be appointed to smooth all differences which may have originated between the two companies. The work was begun in 1872, and we are through with the Gospels, and nearly done with Acts and the New Testament. The work wont be finished for five or seven years yet, but we have enlisted for the war, we have put our shoulders to the wheel and will keep it there though some of us are old and gray, and don't expect to see the end of it.

HOW ENGLAND CONSIDERS IT.

England looks on us more in the light of advisers than anything else, and has been unwilling to give us a final vote in the determination of the text. We Americans, to use a common term, are unwilling to play second fiddle to any one. The idea that they could be wrong does not seem to have entered their heads. The difficulty could not be adjusted by correspondence and I crossed the ocean and entered into personal negotiations with them about the matter. I told them that the Americans had made a Declaration of Independence once, and that they conceived that it included not only what it plainly set forth but Bible theology and revision also. They were informed that unless we were allowed a voice in the determination of the text the work would not be accepted in this country, and that we would be obliged to make a revision of our own. The negotiations resulted in the promise of a full and satisfactory settlement, the terms of which I am not at liberty to make known. I can assure you, however, that it is perfectly honorable and satisfactory to both parties. This is the first time America has had a chance in the revision of a Bible for its own use. The result will be that the work will be clearer and dearer to us all.

The address of Dr. Schaff completing the afternoon session, the Alliance adjourned.

Evening Session.

The evening session was opened with singing, followed by prayer by Rev. Rogers, D. D., of New York.

The attendance was quite large, the audience in fact completely filling the church both on the main floor and in the galleries.

Upon the conclusion of Dr. Rogers' prayer the President announced the subject for discussion, the "Best way to Reach the Masses," and introduced the first speaker, Rev. G. W. Heacock, D. D., of Buffalo, N. Y.

The Reverend gentleman started out with the statement that he supposed the question he was delegated to speak upon, would be in another form, "How shall the Christian Church reach the great mass who are away from Christian influence?" There is no denying the fact that a very large portion of the people are separated from the Christian Church and away from its influence. Some place this number at one-third of the entire population; some even greater than that; and some place it at one-fifth. In any case the number is large enough and wide enough and deep enough, to stir to its depths every Christian heart. Now, how to reach them.

There is one pre-requisite: The Christian Church must come to cherish and cultivate a profounder and deeper sympathy with the masses. This is a prime factor, that the Church should keep in sympathy with the masses. Christ set the example of such sympathy. In Matthew, 9:36, it is stated that Christ saw the multitude and was struck with compassion for them that they had no teacher. In Luke: He was moved with compassion when He saw the multitudes because they were like sheep without a shepherd. And in numerous other places mention is made of the sympathy of Christ for the masses. If to the church this great, tempted, sorrow-burdened heart of humanity could be revealed as it was to Christ, it would perhaps work better and succeed better. It is a thought that should touch the Christian heart to the centre that so large a mass of people are averse to the teachings of Christ.

"ETERNAL LIFE."

We need to take up ourselves and weigh in the balance what this great gift is, "Eternal Life"—ineffable and immeasurable grace! Such as would stir these iron hills around us, is the depth of that sympathy we should feel for those who are still in sin. No other loss is equal to the loss of eternal life, and all other gains are as naught if we possess but that. There have been men in the pulpit possessors of the sympathy that Christ felt for the multitude, but of not all that occupy that position could the same be said. What greater honor or bliss can come to a man than that accruing from lifting from the gutter, from the depths of sinful and moral degradation, a man and bringing him up to the glory of righteousness—up to the very throne of God. Can anything equal this? The depths of our hearts should be stirred with the possibility of reaching this.

The gospel should be preached to the very gates of hell; and many of these gates are to be found on the streets of this city. A deep, profound, earnest sympathy with the people is the prime pre-requisite to reach the masses. Let them know that we feel our unworthiness of the great goodness of God—bring ourselves down to the level of the masses and overcome them by overcoming ourselves.

When we are animated by the spirit to work for Christ, then we may look for ways and means, but not before. We need the conviction that Christ is inestimable to every human soul. Without this feeling, this earnest desire to work, the devising of plans is but the construction of machinery that will not work—it is artillery without powder, a locomotive without steam. The Church must have energy, or all its systems for labor will be of no avail.

The question has not been ignored by the church; efforts have been made. If the church has one plan that has more potency than another—one mode that certainly gives the best success—let it be named, and let all follow it. One plan is the Mission Sunday School and Church. From this much good has resulted, but it is incapable of accomplishing all that is desired. Another method is holding meetings in public halls, for the purpose of attracting those who oppose the supposed exclusiveness of the church. This method has done some good. Another is the erection of a great peoples' church, which shall be absolutely free—no pews, no distinction between rich and poor. This edifice to be no small building erected by one sect, but a huge, grand, imposing edifice which shall be for all the people. This has not been tried in this country, but the speaker believed it would do much good. And still another plan is to make all the seats free in the churches once each Sabbath, giving up all pews and admitting and inviting all. And there are open air meetings and street corner meetings. These have a great advantage over other methods, as these meetings can be held wherever a few can be induced to stop, and one or two persons secured to help in the way of singing and praying. But these meetings have an abatement—their results generally slip through the fingers. They need some supplementary methods to gather up the fruits.

It is thus seen that some other method is needed. It is a method that will give the results for which the Church is seeking.

The best address of Moody in England was that directing visitation from house to house. He insisted upon emphasizing the means by which his results were obtained. Mr. Davison says that the ranks of the habitual neglecters of Christian worship were scarcely broken by Mr. Moody. It was church-goers who formed the principal portion of the converts. Christians knew when he was coming, talked of it, read of it, and then went to hear him. It is the church-goers who know of the movements in the religious world, while the non-attendants neither know nor care. If such an attraction as Moody will not reach the masses, neither will the ringing of bells and firing of cannons bring them. The people will run to attend an election bon-fire, but not to attend church.

There are many people living right in the midst of Christain surroundings, who know nothing about the churches, nothing about the services, nothing of anything that is going on in religious circles about them. If they won't come to us, we must go to them. You say you can't get people to do it; that business men haven't time. They will not do it? There is danger that some day such Christianity will go out in the darkness of eternal despair!

The Savior Himself suggested such work. At the wedding supper the master bade his servants go out into the streets and byways, the lanes and hedges, and summon guests to the feast. It would be a fine thing for the people to come in, but since they won't we must go to them. Look at the way the great Chalmers worked in Glasgow, hunting in the lowest dens for sinners. He couldn't trust to his great attractions to draw the people, but sought them personally. He taught how necessary it is to go to the homes of the masses, to hunt them up. Jesus has not told us to do a great thing; but we neglect even the work that we should perform.

The speaker had a great horror of tract distribution. It will not do to go around sticking tracts under doors and through windows. Such work as that will never evangelize the world; nor will any perfunctory labor.

A missionary once remarked that he couldn't stay in India because the people "smelt so bad." It is a similar reason that deters many from laboring for Christ by seeking the people. But we must go ourselves. You must make yourself the friend of the people; you must get in sympathy with them. You say you can't do it. Then throw up your commission; you can do nothing. We have to become convicted and converted on this subject. Let every denomination do its work, and the answer will not be long in coming to the question, How shall we solve this great problem?

Upon the conclusion of Rev. Heacock's address, which contained many beautiful and elegant passages, and of which the above is but a synopsis, the hymn "I love Thy Kingdom Lord" was sung, and then was introduced. He stated that he had one qualification for speaking upon the subject which had been so eloquently handled by the speaker who preceded him, and that was that his heart was profoundly impressed with it. He had been listening to the speaker's remarks and watching the faces of the congregation, to see if they thought the solution had been reached. But he had not seen it, and they, like himself, doubtless realized that the solution was not reached yet. He then continued:

There is a great mistake made in the estimate of the people who are not reached by the church; we misjudge who these people are. There are four classes: The great Roman Catholic population is unused to the gospel as preached by Protestants. Then there is the large foreign population; and the degraded and debased of our own country, who have grown up in evil. But the most important class is the respectable, intelligent, well-to-do, enterprising mechanics, merchants, lawyers and bankers. This is a very large and growing class, it is respectable, and they are those who consider themselves the ruling class. In the four principal cities of the country, New York, Chicago, St. Louis and Cincinnati, more than one-half of the population do not attend church. I prefer to change the question, and make it "Why do we not reach them?" There is a reason why Protestant Christianity is comparatively impotent to reach the masses and influence them—or rather I discard the word "masses;" it has something degrading in it, and use multitude instead. That reason is one that may startle you, you may not believe it, but it is true—the reason we don't reach the multitudes is because we don't want to reach them, startling though it is. You think it is not true. If asked you would all say you want to reach them. But we discuss all the time the thing we would like to see done, forgetting that we don't want to do it. Men do what they want to do, not what they would like to see done. If a man wants a fortune, he will work and strive for it earnestly; if he wants an education, or position, he works for it; he puts his whole heart in it. But have we this consuming desire to reach the multitudes? The proof is in the work. What have we done? Well, we pray for it. Exactly; but what else would we pray for? we haven't much else to pray for. But when did you agonize over it, work for it?

Let me take this congregation for a sample, and arraign it—what have you done for Christ? "Well, we have built this church, costing $150,000; we attend it; we like to go to church; we have a good pastor, and we like to hear him." That is not much; there are many men who go to church who are not Christians. The congregation come to church, listen to a good sermon, and then go home and fold their hands, feeling that they have done their duty. But the people will never be reached while we are in this condition. The speaker who preceded me said this was from a lack of sympathy; I charge it to a lack of duty to the people. We must be impressed with the importance of the work, and then carry out that impression.

There must be some attraction in the church to make the work successful. If we expect good to result from employing a number of men and women to go about the city, or to preach on street corners, we are much mistaken. And but little fruit and no real good will result from the establishment of cheap Mission Churches. The great thinking multitude can never be reached in that way.

The pastor cannot devote his attention to the work; he has too much else to attend to. The only way to have it done is for the conviction to come to all hearts that it must be done, and that we want to do it. The problem will be solved just as soon as we want it done. Exactly Bishop

Lack of time and space prevents us from giving any further extracts from the Bishop's remarks. They were sensible to the core, and were frequently and heartily applauded. Upon their conclusion, a hymn was sung, announcements made, the benediction pronounced, and the meeting adjourned.

The session of the Alliance continues to-day, the programme being as follows:

Morning Session, 9 to 12 o'clock—"Art in Relation to Worship"—Rev. E. A. Washburne, D.D., New York City, (Episcopal); Rev. J. G. Morris, D.D., Baltimore, (Lutheran).

Afternoon Session, 2½ to 5 o'clock—"Ultramontanism and Civil Power"—Rev. G. W. Samson, D.D., New York City, (Baptist); Dr. W. J. Buddington, Brooklyn, (Congregationalist).

Evening Session, 7½ o'clock—"Suppression of Intemperance"—Rev. J. M. Buckley, D.D., Stamford, Conn., (Methodist); Rev. W. M. Taylor, New York City, (Congregationalist).

Social Reunion, 5½ to 7½ o'clock, P. M.

BREVITIES.

....There were only forty-three deaths in this city last week.

....The Gounod club will render the oratorio of "Don Munio," on November 9th.

....The Braddock and Downer clubs play their postponed game at Union Park to-morrow.

....The alarm of fire from box 142, yesterday evening, just after five o'clock, was caused by the ignition of a bed.

....J. T. Glass, who shot young Crouse, at Sharpsburg, had a hearing before 'Squire Kiel, yesterday, and was discharged.

....The Gas Committee of Allegheny Councils met last evening and ordered the purchase of a number of Bowell's patent street lamps.

....The County Commissioner's are busy preparing the election documents. The election officers are requested to call promptly for their papers.

....Mr. Richard Baorous, of the South Side, a blacksmith, fell into an excavation on Try street yesterday morning, receiving serious injuries. Drs. O'Lewitt and Miller attended to him.

....Frank Trowerbridge, of Dennison, Ohio, was arrested in this city yesterday by Detective Messner and taken to that place to answer a charge of the larceny of a watch from Richard Sheridan.

....Yesterday morning as Mr. Crawford, of the Eleventh ward, Allegheny, was driving along the road in that ward, his horse became unmanageable and backed over an embankment. The wagon was smashed and the horse injured.

....An application is to be sent to the Board of Pardons for the pardon of Frederick Madison, who, at the December sessions of the Criminal Court, pleaded guilty to a charge of entering the store of John Wallace, with felonious intent. He was sentenced to the Penitentiary for three years and four months.

....The Board of Viewers are engaged in hearing testimony in support of claims for damages caused by the improvement of Carson street, below the Suspension bridge, South Side. The P. C. & St. Louis Railway Company claim that they have sustained damage to the amount of $30,000, caused by the settling of their retaining wall.

....Epping, Carpenter & Co. are just finishing a handsome ten-inch (Keystone) steam pump for the Kittanning water works; have recently shipped a five-inch pump to a brewery at Latrobe, a seven-inch pump to the Model Oil Works, Freeport, and a boiler feed to Elkins & Flack, Riverside Oil Works, and are at work on a five-inch for Park, Bros. & Co., and one of the same size for Wm. Clark's mill. They are quite busy at this time, with good prospects for the future.

....Civil Engineer Morely, of the new Water Works Department will, after the 1st prox., dispense with the services of Inspectors Brown, Harrison and McSweeney, Engineer Lowe and Rodman McKee, retaining only his Assistant Engineer, Mr. Patterson. In Mr. Lowry's department several employes are to be allowed to depart in peace, but it is not known yet who are to be discharged. A reduction is also talked of in the Water Assessor's Department, but nothing definite has been yet determined on.

....A lady, who was present at the meeting of the Evangelical Alliance on Wednesday, writes us to say that the floral decorations of the pulpit and dais, mentioned in yesterday's GAZETTE, and so much admired by herself and all present, were designed and arranged by Messrs. Bechmann & Patterson, florists, No. 132 Smithfield street, and were contributed through a member of the Alliance. These decorations are so beautiful as to well repay a visit to the church (the First Presbyterian,) Dr. Scovell's.

....Pittsburgh's a busy city, full of wealth, has a big reputation as a manufacturing metropolis; runs a big Exposition, makes a heap of smoke, and does a power of blowing, but there lies the form of poor Steve Foster, the author of "Old Folks at Home," under their very noses, without even a lump of coal to mark his resting place. O shame! What a pity it is that ever poor Foster lived or died in Pittsburgh! He had made the world happy with his songs, and Pittsburgh, his native city, honors him so much as to let him lie "alone and forsaken" in his unknown and silent grave. All the smoke that Pittsburgh can make and roll up from her countless chimneys can never hide the stigma that rests upon her, in not doing the modest act of putting even a slab of coal or a monument of iron over the remains of Foster.—Will. S. Hays, in Louisville Courier Journal.

PERSONAL.

Sam. Cary arrived in the city yesterday. The Republican majority in this county will be larger than ever, and will increase in proportion to the length of time Samuel remains.

Townsend Whelen, Esq., a member of the well-known Philadelphia banking firm of Townsend Whelen & Co., agents for Pittsburgh bonds, died in that city on Tuesday afternoon, in the fifty-fourth year of his age.

POLITICAL.

The Meeting Last Night on the South Side—Meetings This Evening.

Notwithstanding the cold weather last night a large Republican mass meeting was held in front of the South Side Savings Bank, on Carson street, near Eighteenth. The meeting was organized at eight o'clock by the election of the following officers:

President.—August Ammon.

Vice Presidents.—J. C. McCutcheon, John Adams, John Nusser, H. J. Bigger, Adam Weidman, John McKain, Jenkin Jouss, Chas. Schwarm, E. G. Krehan, W. C. Aughinbaugh, Geo. Schafer, Geo. Walker, Peter Alldred, Wm. Doyle, Geo. Noble, Thos. Atterbury, E. F. Frank, M. M. Schneider, James Duncan, Mark Donley, Jno. Larimer, R. E. Mercer, Louis Schmidt W. H. Lipps, Daniel Wenke, John Apple, John V. Auth, Adam Weaver, Wm. Irwin, Louis Aurin, Edward Sprung and George Holliday.

Secretaries—Dr. Rauhauser, Harry Walker, John Hughes, Nathan Brokaw, Geo. Trautman and John Alldred.

After an introductory speech by Chairman Ammon, he introduced Col. L. C. Poorman, of Ohio, who made a very strong and earnest speech, which was ably supplemented by the forcible address of Hon. T. J. Bigham. Both were closely listened to throughout and frequently applauded.

Meetings will be held this evening at McKeesport and Lawrenceville, the latter between Forty-sixth and Forty-seventh streets. Good speakers will be present at both places.

The Fourth Ward Minute Men, of Allegheny, are making great preparations for the grand torchlight demonstration on Saturday evening.

A meeting of the veterans of the late war, who desire the re-election of Hartranft, will be held at the Young Men's Republican Club Rooms, Allegheny, this evening, for the purpose of organizing and making arrangements to turn out on Saturday evening.

THE members of the Young Men's Republican Club of Allegheny are requested to meet at the armory of Knapp's battery at 5½ o'clock (sharp) THIS EVENING, to proceed to McKeesport on the 6:20 train. By order of the Captain.

RALLY AT TARENTUM.

The Republicans of Tarentum will hold a grand rally on Friday night. The campfires are burning brightly in the Republican stronghold and the demonstration promises to be an enthusiastic one. Mr. J. Vannote has been selected to make an address, and will be present.

RALLY AT MCKEESPORT.

There will be a grand rally at McKeesport this evening, and a torchlight procession. A number of the clubs from this vicinity will participate, going up on a special train. The train will leave the Connellsville depot at 6:20 sharp, and will return after the parade is over.

Steamship Arrivals Yesterday.

Dispatches received at Max Schamberg's European Steamship, Exchange and Telegraph Office, at 163 Smithfield street, announce the arrival of the steamship City of Montreal, at New York; steamer Wieland, at New York; steamer California, at Moville; steamer Nederland, at Lerves.

How to Vanquish the Stomach's Tormentor.

If the enemy of mankind was permitted to exercise his diabolical ingenuity in the invention of a new disease, he could scarcely devise one more worthy of his genius than dyspepsia. The dyspeptic sufferer is tormented by symptoms resembling those of almost every known malady, and is often worried into monomania and by these conflicting and perplexing manifestations. A favorite though absurd hallucination of the victim of chronic indigestion is that he or she has heart disease. Dyspepsia has often been pronounced incurable, but experience has shown that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will vanquish it, together with the constipation and bilious derangement which usually accompany it. Diseases of the kidneys and supposed rheumatic pains are also frequent concomitants of dyspepsia, but they, too, succumb to the above named invaluable corrective.
